Washington, May 19 (AP)—Brigadier General James H. Doolittle was revealed today as the leader of the American air raid on Japan a few weeks ago.

This was disclosed when the flier, noted also for his peacetime speed exploits, received from President Roosevelt in person today a congressional medal of honor.

In a statement released at the White House, Doolittle described the historic mission.

He said that little trouble was experienced in reaching objectives or from Japanese planes.

One plane's target, Doolittle asserted, was the navy yard south of Tokyo where "one salvo made a direct hit on a new cruiser or battleship under construction" and "left it in flames."

One bombardier, the general said, "strewn incendiary bombs along a quarter of a mile of aircraft factory near Nagoya."

Doolittle said that the squadron of American planes came in just over the house-tops, and dropped bombs from 1,500 feet. The low level flying, he said, made it difficult to observe the results of the bombs.

Every Bomb Hits Target

"It appeared to us," the flying general declared, "that practically every bomb reached the target for like to have landed and watched the later developments of fire and explosion, but even so we were fortunate to receive a fairly detailed report from the excited Japanese radio broadcasts. It took them several hours to calm down to deception and accusation."

Doolittle said part of his party observed a ball game in progress at one point and players and spectators did not start to run for cover until just as the field passed from view.

The identity of the leader of the air raid had remained a closely guarded secret. Just before pinning the congressional medal of honor on him, Doolittle said:

Supreme Court Ponders
Point Whether Baby
Should Ride Elevator

New York, May 19 (AP)—The question before the State Supreme Court is:

Should Madelon La Pidus, 4-month-old baby, be allowed to ride up and down an elevator in her perambulator to her nursery?

Counsel for the building owners, armed with a formidable lease, want to eliminate Madelon and the baby carriage entirely from the elevator. Said Henry Clay La Pidus, the baby's dad:

"Bombs are falling on defenseless cities; the world kneels and weeps and is in travail, yet the Grand Army Plaza Corporation (building owner) heeds the call of duty and pauses to prepare 11 pages of closely typed legal cap seeking to restrain this highness, the baby, now four months old, from using the passenger elevator."

Said the mother:

"Have you ever read a lease? Nobody does."

A perplexed court reserved decision until June 1.

Rifton Man Is Killed in Collision at Tillson

James Reilly, 39, Rifton well-driller, was killed instantly yesterday afternoon when the motorcycle on which he was riding collided with a car driven by Nicholas Brown of Atwood at the Four Corners in Tillson, on route 32, Kingston and New Paltz road. Reilly purchased the motorcycle, a 1938 three-wheel model, on Monday and was taking it home yesterday when the accident happened. Shown in the above photo is the Brown car with the motorcycle standing at the side. The D. L. Christian store is on the right. Other photo on Page 3.

News From Ulster Shows Lord Gort Has Proved Point

Armies Being Equipped in Manner Equivalent to Job Ahead and This Requires Time

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT
(Wide World War Analyst)

Just about two years ago, in concluding his tragic official dispatches dealing with the lost campaign in Flanders, General Lord Gort, commander-in-chief of the British Expeditionary Force, wrote of "the vital necessity for an expeditionary force, if it is to be used in a first class war, being equipped on a scale commensurate with the task it is to be called upon to fulfill."

Today's news from Ulster makes it evident that this primary lesson in the long, galling "too little-too late series" has been learned. The greatest A.E.F. of this war has reached united kingdom stations, tens of thousands of husky young men, and they are superbly equipped with the tanks, big guns and transport without which an allied continental invasion must inevitably end in another Dunkerque.

There is, of course, no doubt at all that this American force is destined to fight alongside the pick of Britain's armies somewhere in France, or Belgium, or the Netherlands or Norway. Just when and just where it will fight are military secrets which must be kept.

Naturally, however, the keeping of these secrets is bound to aggravate the natural impatience of the allied peoples as time goes on—and it seems inevitable that considerable time must go on before there is another expeditionary force in continental Europe equipped, supported and maintained on a scale commensurate with the task it is to be called upon to fulfill.

One must get the whole global war picture in perspective to see this clearly, but it is enough for now to remember that in this critical hour the hardest and most pressing task which the united

James R. Reilly Dies In Crash at Tillson

Rifton Well-Driller's
Motorcycle and Car
Collide; Injuries
Are Severe

James R. Reilly, 39-year-old well-driller of Rifton was killed instantly Monday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock when he was thrown from his motorcycle following a collision with a car operated by Nicholas Brown of Atwood at the four corners in Tillson. Reilly had just purchased the motorcycle from the Triangle Gas Station in Kingston and police officers said the accident happened during the second ride of Reilly. He had operated a motorcycle some 10 years ago.

A small child of Mrs. Lester Shultis, who had been seated on his tricycle in front of the D. L. Christiana store at the intersection but a moment before the crash, escaped death by a matter of seconds. The child had been on the tricycle but a short time before the crash and fearing he might start across the road, his mother had picked him up and taken him in shortly before the cycle crashed at the store entrance, smashed the tricycle and crashed into the store wrecking the entrance to the store.

Reilly suffered a crushed skull and thorax, a broken leg and numerous internal injuries when thrown from the cycle after it had been in collision with the Brown car. Apparently he was thrown clear of the cycle and landed on the concrete walks and entrance steps to the store. An autopsy was performed last evening at the A. Carr and Son morgue by Dr. J. S. Taylor and Dr. Chester Van Gansbeck revealed the severe injuries which Mr. Reilly had suffered.

According to the investigation made by Sheriff Howard C. Anderson, Deputy Sheriffs Vredenburg and DeWitt, Mr. Brown was driving his car along Route 32 southward toward New Paltz and Reilly was operating the motorcycle in an easterly direction to

Newsman Take Trip to Sea to Observe Glow of New York Lights Against Sky

New York, May 19 (AP)—Millions of lights from the New York metropolitan area continue to throw a glow into the sky, etching ships against a perfect backdrop to make them targets for the enemy at night.

This was the conclusion reached by news men last night after cruising several miles to sea from New York harbor to observe the results of drastic new regulations.

They were invited by the army and requested to report only what they saw. They saw a massive cloud of light stretching for miles along the shore.

While there was no official comment, an army officer who has watched the progress of successive attempts to decrease the lighting effect expressed belief that some strides had been made although much remained to be done.

He said he believed the new rules, affecting almost all citizens in one way or another, had brought about an improvement but ac-

More Than 100,000
Tons of Shipping
Ride Anchor at Fort

With Reports

By CHANDLER DIEHL

Castries, St. Lucia, British West Indies, May 19 (AP)—More than 100,000 tons of shipping, including both French warships and merchantmen, ride quietly at anchor in the sunlit harbor of Fort de France, Martinique, while the United States and Martinique authorities continue negotiations which could have far-reaching consequences.

I have just seen most of this French shipping from outside the harbor limits.

The huge form of the bulky 22-146-ton aircraft carrier Bearn was prominent among the vessels whose outlines could be seen in the wide harbor off old Fort St. Louis.

Dotted about the carriers were a half-dozen tankers and one ship of the passenger type which probably was the Sagittaire, known to have arrived some time ago from Casablanca, French Morocco.

Other warships known to be stationed in Fort de France, including the 5,886-ton cruiser Emile Bertin which fought valiantly beside the British at Narvik, were hidden from view.

They must have been beside the dock behind Fort St. Louis, where they have been seen by others.

The speedy Emile Bertin is the ship which is the subject of the greatest interest to United Nations circles because of reports that indicate it still carries enough fuel to reach Dakar, French West Africa, where it could conceivably be attached to an Axis fleet.

The Bertin has been kept near top condition by trial runs in the Caribbean arranged by Admiral Georges Robert, high commissioner of the French West Indies.

The present fighting condition of the Bertin is not widely known, but it is generally understood that some 100 United States manufactured planes once aboard her now are ashore.

While our party was riding past Cape Enrage outside the north side harbor entrance and pointed toward the British Island of St. Lucia 30 miles away, we saw a United States Navy plane swing

Mock Invasion Rehearsals Are Staged by Nazis

Plans Discussed
To Enlist Youths
To Work on Farms
Meeting Will Be Held
at Milton Schoolhouse;
Big Problem Is
Accommodation

With a decided shortage in farm labor already prevailing, due to the draft and war conditions generally, plans are being considered to enlist the services of high school students, who will be known as Farm Cadets.

The Farm Labor Committee, representing the Ulster County Agricultural Defense Committee, which latter represents all the farm organizations in the county, has called a meeting for Thursday, 8 p. m., at the Milton schoolhouse, at which time the situation will be discussed.

Representatives of three employment services, with offices in Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Newburgh, will be present, as will be W. J. Weaver of the State Department of Education. It is expected that many southern Ulster fruit growers and some from Orange county, who are particularly interested, will attend the meeting and any others concerned are invited to be present.

At present growers who raise strawberries are doing the most worrying about the condition of affairs, as the local season for this fruit starts within a couple of weeks or so. Other fruits will follow along and the question as to who is to do the harvesting is a serious one.

Farm Bureau Agent Albert Kurtz said this morning that one of the difficulties which must be met if high school students are used for this work, is the provision of housing.

Air Raid 'Blue' Given in New York

Radio Stations Are Silent
Several Minutes; Jersey
Also Gets Alarm

New York, May 19 (AP)—An air raid alarm sounded over the police radio shortly after 11 a. m. today.

NBC announced its Station WEAF was off the air for 23 minutes.

Later, the Army Information Service announced that "a practice alert was sounded at 11:05 a. m., as a blue alarm by the First Interceptor Command."

It added that all radio stations were ordered off the air.

Commenting on the alarm, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia said: "We were ready at this time and we will be ready at any time."

Arthur W. Wallander, the mayor's chief of staff for defense, arrived at city hall shortly after the signal and went directly to the mayor's office.

Headquarters of the Office of Civilian Defense here said that the blue signal was the second, or intermediate call. This summons to duty all air raid wardens, fire fighters, medical officers and others assigned to official air raid tasks, the O. C. D. said.

Jersey Gets Alarm

Newark, N. J., May 19 (AP)—A state-wide air raid alarm was sent throughout New Jersey at 11:17 a. m. (Eastern War Time) today.

Fleet of Small Craft Is Being Made Ready;
Organizations Are Much Busier

(The author of this dispatch is an American newspaperman formerly stationed in Paris who is among the diplomats, correspondents and others being repatriated in exchange for Axis nationals from the United States.)

By PHILIP WHITCOMB
(Written for Associated Press)

Lisbon, May 19 — Germany's army in occupied France, probably numbering between 400,000 and 600,000 men, is more active now than at any time since the armistice of Compiègne two years ago.

Rehearsal invasions are staged daily on the French coasts under the tutelage of a special circulating staff experienced in the methods of Britain's raids.

A fleet of small boats sufficient to carry an invasion army was collected last month and now is being made ready.

A ground organization has concealed hangers for 4,000 planes, according to general estimate—for 12,000 planes, in the opinion of one competent observer.

There has been a burst of activity in each of the five German organizations, which provide the hundreds of thousands of men—the regular army garrisons, coast defense forces, a skeleton invasion force, an air defense force and raiding force and divisions resting or being reconstructed.

Coordination Is in Vain

With Nazi authorities vainly trying to coordinate these forces, a conflicting organization is the economic staff with three objectives: To get the maximum French output of civil and war goods, to obtain the most possible for Germany and to locate and acquire all key businesses in France.

These modern carpet-baggers wear uniforms and engage in a continual pitched battle with four other German organizations in occupied France—the army, propaganda, gastaop and embassy.

The commanding general is supposed to control the first four and respect the wishes of the fifth, the embassy, but actually each devotes much energy to blocking the other four.

The angriest is the propaganda branch which produces daily floods of persuasive, loving material through the press, movies, theatres, radio and posters only to have their effect wiped out by the army shooting 50 hostages or the economic service getting a Frenchman's business or the gastaop holding some servant girl for six months while it decides whether she insulted a German officer.

In comparison with Germany and other warring nations, the French are eating, saving and enjoying recreation.

Politically, the general tendency is to wait for a definite turn in the war rather than try the impossible job now of breaking the armistice terms.

Toward the new chief of government, Pierre Laval, the attitude is one of deferred judgement until something happens but the public generally is very pleased that Marshal Petain has given command of all France's land, sea and air forces to Admiral Jean Darlan, keeping them from Laval.

Reds Stiffen

Russian Resistance Is
Stiffening in Crimea,
Report Declares

By ROGER D. GREENE

(Associated Press War Editor)
Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's Red armies were reported hammering the Germans into retreat in the eight-day-old battle of Kharkov today, advancing between 30 and 40 miles on a 60-mile front, crushing tank-led counter-attacks and wiping out Nazi parachute troops.

Front-line dispatches said Russian cavalrymen, charging wildly across a pontoon bridge under an umbrella of warplanes, had captured "a large inhabited locality" in a further advance on the big Ukraine steel city.

Soviet tanks followed the horsemen, while Red warplanes shot down 17 German aircraft which vainly attempted to break up the assault.

The unidentified locality may have been Belgorod, about 25 miles north of Kharkov or Zmiev, 12 miles south of Kharkov. The capture of either point would create a serious flanking threat to the Germans.

The dashing Cossacks were reported scouring the battle sector, sabering Nazi "chute troops" as they drifted down behind the lines. More than 100 Germans were killed in a single descent. Besides their sabers, the Cossacks are armed with machine-guns, rifles, anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns.

Dispatches said German tanks were attacking in waves, with three columns of 100, 80 and 50 panzers striking in a sector only two and one-half miles wide. Soviet anti-tank gunners stopped them the dispatches declared.

Red Star, the Soviet Army newspaper, said 400 Nazi tanks had been destroyed so far, with the number "growing every hour."

London military quarters said the Russian offensive, which began with a 35-mile breach through the German lines, was now sweeping forward at varying depths on a 120-mile line.

Soviet dispatches declared Russian shock troops were "breaking enemy resistance" and said the Germans were already showing signs of strain as wave after wave of reserves failed to stem the advance of Timoshenko's men.

More than 2,700 Germans were reported killed or wounded, in addition to 12,000 previously annulled.

A British military commentator said the big drive was having a considerable effect on German offensive plans, amid indications that Nazi assault troops resting in other areas were being diverted to Kharkov.

On the whole, Adolf Hitler ap-

Pity Poor Brokers

What Can They Do With
Cruisers on Only 3
Gallons of Gas

New York, May 19 (AP)—Pity the poor Wall Street brokers who formerly commuted from their Long Island or Connecticut homes by motor cruiser and now have been hit by gasoline rationing.

Drake H. Sparkman, a marine architect, said today that they were not regarded as "essential" mariners and that "further water commuting is therefore unlikely."

The three-gallon-a-week ration allowed them scarcely was enough to get a good-sized cruiser's engine started, he moaned, and even if boat owners could prove they could not get to town by rail transportation they might expect only about 8 or 9 gallons weekly.

Many Long Island motorboat skippers who already had spent many days caulking and repainting their power craft for the summer are to be seen these days standing wistfully around the docks, watching the sails go by.

Wheat Crop Again Large; Many Eggs

More Chicks Raised in Food for Freedom Effort

Albany, May 19 — New York winter wheat production is headed for a crop of 6,688,000 bushels if the early season indications are realized, according to a Federal-State report issued from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. This is 2 per cent more than last year, and 20 per cent above the 10-year 1930-39 average. The national winter-wheat crop is forecast at 646,875,000 bushels, only 4 per cent less than last year and 14 per cent more than the 10-year average. These forecasts assume that normal conditions will prevail during the balance of the growing season.

Rye, with a national crop of 53,279,000 bushels expected is 18 per cent above last season, and New York's anticipated 3,567,000 bushels is 23 per cent above last year's crop.

Egg production in New York during April was about 17 million dozen, nearly 5 per cent above the same month a year ago. There were general increases in the northeastern states, though the major and really spectacular increases occurred in the mid-western states. United States April 1942 production of 499 million dozen eggs exceeded April 1941 by 17 per cent. The totals for the first four months of 1942 are 16 per cent ahead of last year.

Cold storage holdings of eggs in the shell on May 1, 1942 were 4,650,000 cases of 30-dozen each (U. S. total) compared to 3,031,000 cases a year earlier and 3,468,000 cases, the 10-year May 1 average. Frozen eggs equivalent to 4,245,000 cases this May 1 are comparable with 2,654,000 cases a year earlier and 2,517,000 cases the 10-year average.

NEW PALTZ

Pastor Welcomed

New Paltz, May 19 — New Paltz Methodist Church welcomed the Rev. David Wesley Soper as minister of the church Sunday, May 10. Consignation sent him to New Paltz from the Castle Heights Methodist Church of White Plains. The Rev. Mr. Soper was born in Elmira. His father has been for years a Methodist minister, his mother is a licensed preacher and both sisters are licensed preachers and one is married to a Baptist minister, the other to a Brethren missionary to China and Manchukuo. The Rev. Mr. Soper received his bachelor of arts degree in John B. Stetson University, Deland, Fla., bachelor of Sacred Theology at Biblical Seminary, New York. He has taken graduate doctor of philosophy degree work in Drew University, Madison, N. J. He entered the ministry in Florida at the age of 16, occupied a college mission pulpit in Kentucky, was for two years minister in a Dutch Reformed Church. He came to Castle Heights by exchange in 1936. As quartet bass he has toured 32 states and Canada in sacred concerts and broadcasts for Asbury College. In 1938 he began a vacation mission among share croppers and slum dwellers in the mid-west, continued each summer with color slides filmed during these missions. He has delivered lectures on these folk before New York University classes, service clubs of all kinds and many other organizations. Mrs. Soper was Miss Marjorie Dunn of Cincinnati, O., the two little girls are Marjorie Ann and Ann Rutledge. The New Paltz congregation in welcoming the new pastor and family also regret saying goodbye to the Rev. and Mrs. Elmer Bostock and family. The Rev. Mr. Bostock having been pastor for three years. During this time he organized the young married people into the Double Forty Club, which has become an important part of the church. Under Mrs. Bostock's able guidance the kindergarten and primary department of the church school has been increased in numbers and efficiency. The three years of service of the Rev. and Mrs. Bostock have given to the New Paltz church has definitely increased the interest in all branches of the church's activity. The Rev. Mr. Bostock and family were sent to Ardley, where they carry with them the best wishes of the community.

Village Notes

New Paltz, May 19 — St. Joseph's Altar Guild will hold its annual communion breakfast Sunday, May 24, at the Old Fort.

The New Paltz annual horse show sponsored by New Paltz Riding Club to be held on the flats Memorial Day will have besides the regular horsemanship classes, field day events, so all participants need not be riders this year. There will be a bicycle riding contest and a greased pig is being talked of, also a cow milking contest and among the games on horseback will be a potato race and the good old "Going to Jerusalem." Kenneth Van Derly will have charge of the games and contests. Classes begin at 1 o'clock. There will be no charge for cars parked on any section of the field. New Paltz is the only town in this section that has such an annual affair and it attracts more widespread attention each year. The motto of this year's event is "Let us celebrate Gasless Days." In case of rain the affair will take place the following day. The classes on the program are as follows: Children's beginners (pony class), children's horsemanship, Normal School beginners, Normal School advanced, farm horse teams (in hand, not necessarily with wagon), open class, exhibition by Jean Van Derlyn, jupping pleasure saddle horse class, costume class. (In this class there will be separate awards for children and grown-ups), games and contests.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mertz of Springtown called on Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Deyo Sunday.

A diphtheria inoculation and smallpox vaccination clinic will be held at the New Paltz Practice School Wednesday, May 20, at 3:30 o'clock. Dr. Virgil DeWitt will be in charge of the clinic with the local doctors participating. All children not accompanied

O.P.A. Gives Hints To Save Gasoline

Parking in Shade Is Listed as Vital to Those Who Would Save Fuel

Washington, May 19 (AP)—The Office of Price Administration's consumer division today offered these hints to motorists on how to stretch their gasoline rations:

Fill up the empty seats in your car. Form a car club; pool essential driving with your neighbors; take turns at driving the crowd to the office or factory; make shopping day a neighborhood enterprise.

Drive slowly. Your gasoline will take you farther if you drive under 40.

Cut out jackrabbit starts and stops—they waste gasoline. Make sure your tires are properly inflated; it takes more gasoline to drive a car with under-inflated tires.

Use lighter oils. Heavy oil drags on your engine and more gasoline is needed to overcome this drag. You may burn up a light oil more quickly, but you will make it up in gasoline savings.

Use first and second gear as little as possible. Accelerate slowly but shift to high at 15 miles an hour.

Have a slipping clutch adjusted at once. A slipping clutch wastes engine power and gasoline.

Go easy on your hand choke. Improper choking floods the engine with too much gasoline. Driving with the choke out also wastes gasoline.

Make these checks every 5,000 miles or oftener. Have the spark-plugs cleaned and adjusted. Have the distributor points checked and adjusted. Clean the air cleaner. Have the carburetor cleaned and adjusted.

Park in the shade whenever you can. Gasoline evaporates more quickly from your tank in the hot sun.

Another Wrong Turn?

(Wide World Features)

Germany's blitz in the west through the Lowlands into France, reached a crucial fork in the road to conquest after the sweep through Belgium and the Netherlands. Hitler turned north to mop up France; the other north, to invade England and bring her to her knees. Hitler took the first road, thereby giving the weakened British a breathing spell and enabling them to build a potent anti-invasion stronghold. Japan reached a similar turning point after her sweep through Singapore and the Netherlands Indies. Hirohito turned north to mop up Burma and press towards India, gave frightened Australia time to build against invasion with United Nations aid. Will history prove both Axis powers took the wrong road?

Auto Pools and Rules For Avoiding Accidents

Chicago, May 19 — Ten "safety" rules for auto pools were suggested today by the National Safety Council.

Pointing out that the frozen supply of automobiles and tires is melting away rapidly, the council said one way to make it last longer is the pooling of cars to carry several people going to the same place at the same time. This applies especially to workers.

"This swap-ride system of transportation greatly reduces the mileage traveled by each car and saves tires, gasoline and oil," said the council. "Drivers and passengers should, however, observe certain simple precautions to avoid costly accidents."

The safety rules for auto pools offered by the Council are:

Arrange a definite driving schedule with your passengers and follow it. Allow plenty of time to avoid speeding—it's hard on tires.

Fill your car to comfortable capacity, but do not permit overcrowding, crowding in the front seat or blocking your view.

Passengers should do nothing that might distract the driver's attention. No horseplay!

Do not "show off" when driving. Be known as a safe and conservative driver with whom your passengers like to ride.

See that your passengers enter or leave the car from the right hand side, not stepping into traffic.

Keep brakes well adjusted. Avoid sudden stops. Remember, it takes longer to stop when your car is loaded.

A loaded car picks up more slowly; allow for this in passing the car ahead.

Strictly obey all traffic signs and signals. Slow down before you reach intersections or railroad crossings. Come to a full stop at "stop" signs. Be considerate of the pedestrian.

Make sure daily that your headlights, tail-lights and "stop" light are working and are clean. Keep windows and mirrors clean, too.

A full load increases the load on your tires, so keep them properly inflated. Rotate them from wheel to wheel occasionally. Examine them frequently for injuries.

The council also emphasized its previous warning to motorists: "Drive it safely, brother—you can't get another!"

Safety Rules Issued For Safe Bicycling

Chicago, May 19 — Pointers for peddlers were listed today by the National Safety Council in recognition of the nation's growing bicycle safety problem.

The curtailment of automobiles, tires and gasoline has increased the number of bicycles in use by more than a million since 1940. A poll of 40 cities just completed by the council showed bike registrations up 18 per cent.

Cleveland, for example, had 44,000 bikes in 1940. Now it has 62,000. Miami, Fla., jumped from 2,000 to 14,000. Oklahoma City from 3,000 to 10,000.

While the bicycle has grown into long pants, its riders still look upon it more as a toy than a vehicle, the council believes. Bicyclists apparently don't realize that they can get into the same kind of trouble on two wheels or four, and that the bike is a vehicle subject to virtually the same traffic laws as autos.

The council urges every pedal pusher, tyro or veteran, to heed well the following rules:

Obeys all traffic laws, signs and signals.

Ride at the extreme right of the street with traffic—not on the left facing it. Don't zig-zag.

Ride single file—never two or

Pertinent Facts On Conscription

Nine out of ten questionnaires (Form 40) must be returned for correction, according to statements of the local boards, it was reported today by Brigadier General Ames T. Brown, New York Director of Selective Service.

The questionnaire is a form sent to registrants and the information returned is the basis of the man's classification. In many cases, failure to give information has led to a classification, correct so far as the board is concerned, which does not grant a deferment to which the registrant is entitled.

"For instance," General Brown said, "registrants have failed to state they are married and have children although they entered into the marital status years ago. Another major failure to complete the questionnaire is neglect to have the signature witnessed. Incomplete questionnaires have caused considerable work to our boards and, in many instances, have caused criticism of the boards when the blame should rest upon the registrant for failing to fill out his questionnaire carefully and completely."

He added that registrants who have trouble in interpreting the questions or filling out the questionnaire should call upon the Registration Advisory Board. Each local board is an advisory board whose work is to help the registrant in such instances.

Occupational questionnaires to list the civilian occupations and skills of registrants of the first and second registrations, who have not been inducted into the armed forces, will be mailed to them as soon as questionnaires have been mailed to all registrants of the third registration, it was announced today by Brigadier General Ames T. Brown, New York state director of Selective Service.

The questionnaire must be filled out by the registrant and mailed to his local board within ten days after he receives it.

Pointing out the vital importance to the nation's war effort of the most efficient use of its manpower for war production, General Brown urged all registrants receiving this questionnaire to give careful thought to their skills, experience and aptitudes when filling it out. He said:

"The government wants to know not only what you are doing now, but also what you can or might be able to do to assist in the war effort. It is not merely a question of training and experience, for you might have some aptitude that could be developed for important use in war production."

The handling of the occupational questionnaire for men of the first and second registrations will be entirely separate from that of the registrants of the third (February 1942) registration, most of whom already have received their questionnaires.

Many of the registrants of the first and second registrations already are in the armed forces, he pointed out, and therefore the questionnaires to them will be mailed from the classification record in each local board office instead of from the list of registrants. Furthermore, the local boards will add to the questionnaires, when they are returned by the registrants, its current classification of each registrant and whatever information is available pertaining to his physical status.

When the occupational questionnaires are returned to the local boards they will be checked for completeness and accuracy and divided into the various sections of which they are composed. One section will be sent to the Bureau of the Census, Washington, D. C., for the attention of the population division. Another section will be relayed to the proper United States Employment Office for the area in which the local board has jurisdiction.

Columbia, Mo. — The tire exigency caused cancellation of a trip by 300 University of Missouri students to attend a dance at Fort Leonard Wood last month.

The soldiers didn't take the disappointment lightly.

They sent a petition to the War Department, and Saturday night 300 of them will call on the coeds in twenty army trucks.

Petty Complaint?

Seattle — "What if the dog had bitten him?" mused Sheriff William B. Severyns as he and his deputies pored over a 6-page typewritten complaint.

The author of the complaint, the most exhaustive ever received by Severyns, charged that a dog had growled at him.

Failing to find a record of the offense, they returned Mrs. Owen's $7 money order, which she had enclosed with a traffic ticket issued June 30, 1935.

Funds for Catholic Athletic Association

Chairman Thomas Costello of the drive to raise funds to carry on the program of the Catholic Athletic Association announces that the drive will officially close at the annual banquet to be held at Fittz's Barn Tuesday, May 26.

He requests that all who wish to make donations send them to Secretary Leo A. Schupp at 19 Adams street before that date.

Donations can also be made in person at the banquet. It is asserted that all donations, no matter how small, can be used in furthering the physical fitness program in connection with the National Defense Program.

All persons having books are requested to mail them to the secretary so that a complete report can be given at the banquet.

DIRECT HIT!

If you pick up the papers one of these days and read that some Japanese city has been bombed—maybe it was "Our" bomber that did the job.

Here's what I mean:

The employees of the New York Central are in this war up to their ears, transporting troops and moving the materials of war. And they're buying War Bonds too—lots of them.

But the news of the attack on Pearl Harbor so stirred a group of men in the Locomotive Shop at Cleveland that they wanted to find a more direct way to hit the Jap. Eighteen got up a petition to provide an opportunity for every New York Central employee to contribute toward the purchase of a giant bomber.

And last month their representative, whose son lost his life in the Philippines after strafing and bombing 25 Jap planes caught on the ground, presented to Uncle Sam a check for $170,062.06.

Now we've been notified that this check is going to buy a twin-engine bomber to fight for Freedom. And right on its nose will be written "New York Central System—Gift of the Employees of the Railroad."

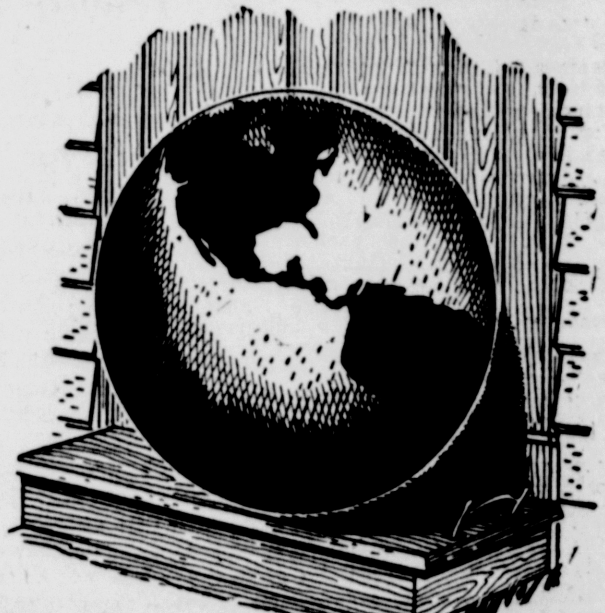

It seems to me that extra, voluntary action like this proves Democracy does work against any action forced by slave drivers. And it's the kind of action that will spell final victory for our side.

And if you don't belong to a group that's chipping in to buy a bomber—remember—you can chip in to buy bombers and tanks and ships by buying your full share of U. S. War Bonds—and then buying a little extra to boot.

China Warns of 'Grave Danger' in War With Japanese

Big Drive Is Expected By Chinese

Government Leader Says Japs Are Landing Big Reinforcements in Burma

Japs Are Raided R. A. F. Covers Retreat of Forces by Attacking Jap Bases

(By The Associated Press) China sounded a rare note of alarm today, warning that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies faced a "very grave" danger in the five-year war with Japan amid signs that a major Japanese offensive against China was imminent.

While Allied warplanes slashed at the invaders on the approaches to Australia and in Burma, a Chinese government spokesman said Japanese reinforcements were pouring into Burma and that 500 Japanese planes were massed there on a scale "out of proportion with their land operations."

The spokesman said the Chungking government had come into possession of an officially approved Japanese map, published in Tokyo, showing that Japan's "co-prosperity sphere for Greater East Asia" intended to engulf China, India, Iran (Persia) and all of Russian Siberia.

The projected sphere's western boundary, he said, ran up to the Persian Gulf, then to the Caspian Sea and on to the Ural mountains. "According to present indications, the next item on the Japanese program is a major offensive against China," the spokesman declared.

"The enemy has concentrated considerable forces for an attack on Chekiang (Chinese coastal province just south of Shanghai) with the avowed purpose of destroying any possible springboard for an attack against Japan."

"At the same time, he is sending more troops to Burma. The border of Yunnan and northern Burma will witness during the next few weeks fighting on an even larger scale than we have seen so far."

"The immediate future is very grim," he said.

With Gen. Harold Alexander's frayed British forces still slowly retreating from Burma into India, R. A. F. warplanes again pounded the Japanese port of Akyab and attacked Japanese river craft in northwest Burma.

Akyab, a likely springboard for a Japanese invasion of India, lies only 300 air miles across the Bay of Bengal from the great Indian city of Calcutta.

In the battle of Australia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Allied fliers probably destroyed two Japanese transports in an attack on shipping at Koepang, Dutch Timor, while enemy warplanes attacked the Allied base at Port Moresby, New Guinea, in the heaviest raid in three months.

An armada of 34 Japanese bombers and 15 fighters attacked the port yesterday, the 52nd raid there since the war began. Gen. MacArthur reported that Allied interceptors shot down one heavy bomber, probably destroyed three others and damaged three enemy fighters.

Dispatches said the bomb-scarred port was now a virtual ghost town, with its civilians gone and most of its houses burned or wrecked.

Engineer Awaits Word From Albany On Rails Project

City Engineer James Norton, who has charge of the local W. P. A. projects for the city, said today that he had submitted a project for the tearing up of the trolley rails in several streets of the city; the rails to be used as scrap steel for the government.

The project was submitted on April 3, but no word has been received as yet as to whether it had been approved or not. The project calls for removing the old trolley rails from parts of Broadway, Hasbrouck avenue, Fair street, Main street and North Front street.

Earlier in the year the trolley rails on Ferry street were taken up when excavation was made for the new siphon line carrying sewerage to the new disposal plant under construction. These rails were sold to a local junk dealer. Mr. Norton said that in the future all trolley rails taken up would be turned over to the government as scrap steel.

Few Jolts of Electricity Can Assist In Cure of D-T's by Shortening Period

Boston, May 19 (AP)—A few shots of electricity from a six-volt dry cell battery can aid in the cure of delirium tremens.

The results, all good, on 54 of these alcoholics, were described to the American Psychiatric Association today by Dr. Nathaniel Berkowitz of Minneapolis.

The electricity puts the alcoholic person to sleep in about 20 to 40 seconds. It is given each morning, in shots of 15 successively, each lasting about one-half second.

At the same time the patients receive the regulation sedative treatments for delirium tremens. The role of the electricity, Dr. Berkowitz said in a prepared address, is to shorten the time of cure by one half or better.

Why electric shots should help is not clear. They were tried on a certain type of violent delirium tremens because the condition resembled the mental psychoses, which are treated by insulin, metrazol and electrical shock. For the alcoholics, a milder shock treatment is used than for the mental cases; that is, the alcoholics never are thrown into convulsions.

An entire day of one session was given over to reports on electric shock for mental troubles, particularly schizophrenia, or split personality. The discussers stressed that electric shock has serious dangers, but that carefully handled it may do considerable good.

peared to face an increasingly gloomy outlook not only in the Russian campaign but at Germany's back door along the English channel "invasion coast."

This was emphasized anew with the disclosure that the biggest A. E. F. contingent of the war—tens of thousands of fresh United States troops with their own tanks and artillery—had arrived to bolster earlier forces training in northern Ireland.

The huge convoy, almost as large as the greatest of Gen. John J. Pershing's overseas shipments in 1918, stood off Axis submarines and probably sank at least one on the 2,400-mile voyage, arriving safely to keep intact the U. S. Navy's record of never having lost a troopship.

A responsible London source declared the arrival of the new contingent, equipped with millions of dollars worth of battle tools, had shifted the balance of military power in western Europe to the Allies' favor for the first time in the war.

Could Plan for Offensive

The source said the Allies could now plan for an offensive with at least 20 divisions, 300,000 men, and added:

"For the first time, the German general staff finds its armies outnumbered on both east and west fronts. . . in the war's third spring, the Germans are faced with Russian, American and British forces thrice the size of the Allied forces opposite them in May, 1940."

Prime Minister Winston Churchill's deputy, Clement R. Attlee, told Parliament he could make no prediction on the opening of a western European front by the Allies. "You may be sure that possibility is in our minds and that it is in the minds of the German high command," Attlee continued.

"Every month increases our strength. Every month gives us cause for believing our position will steadily improve and that in due course we shall change from the defensive, which we still have to hold in many areas, to the offensive."

In the Crimea, the German high command asserted that "destruction of the last remnants of the enemy on the Kerch peninsula is about to be completed," while a Reuters (British news agency) dispatch said Russian resistance had stiffened with the arrival of fresh Red army troops at Yenkale.

Yenkale, at the tip of the peninsula, lies 10 miles northeast of Kerch city. This would indicate that Russian sea-borne forces were being ferried across the narrow Kerch strait from the Caucasus to strengthen the Red armies.

Hitler's field headquarters gave indication of the battle trend to follow in the footsteps of his cousin, Robert Cole, who is already a full-blooded Man-o-War's man on active duty with the fleet. He hopes to take full advantage of the Navy's vast educational program, which gives the eligible enlisted man an excellent opportunity to advance himself by maintaining a total of 34 trade schools where he can receive advanced training.

Under the new pay bill providing a raise in pay for the men in the services, Donaldson, upon attaining the rating of Electrician's Mate, Third Class, would receive the base pay of $78 a month. On further promotion his monthly salary would increase first to $96 and then, when he became a Petty Officer First Class, to $114. These figures are exclusive of the cost of his room and board, and the first issue of clothing, all of which are taken care of by the Navy.

Another Kingston Youth Gains U. S. Navy Training

Seeking to make a career as a fighting bluejacket with Uncle Sam's fighting fleet, LeRoy Donaldson of Kingston is at present completing a several months intensive course at one of the Navy's large midwestern trade schools.

Donaldson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bedford Donaldson of Harwich street, attended the Kingston High School for three years before enlisting as a regular in the Navy. While a sophomore, he starred as a miler on the varsity track team. He was also an active member of the Boy Scouts of America.

Prior to his assignment to a trade school, Donaldson was stationed at the U. S. Naval Training Station, Newport, R. I. where he underwent a period of intensive recruit instruction. This recruit training, deemed so important in the education of a bluejacket, is in accordance with the Navy's policy of making all officers and enlisted men fighters as well as specialists.

The Kingston bluejacket hopes to follow in the footsteps of his cousin, Robert Cole, who is already a full-blooded Man-o-War's man on active duty with the fleet. He hopes to take full advantage of the Navy's vast educational program, which gives the eligible enlisted man an excellent opportunity to advance himself by maintaining a total of 34 trade schools where he can receive advanced training.

James R. Reilly Dies In Crash at Tillson

intersect the main highway at the Christiana store corner. Brown told the officers he was enroute toward Plattkill where he was employed as a watchman by the Walsh Construction Company. As he approached the four corners he saw the cycle being operated from the direction of Tillson. Knowing the intersection was protected by stop signs he did not slow down as he assumed the cycle would come to a stop before entering the intersection. However the cycle failed to stop and the Brown machine struck the rear wheel of the motorcycle. The motorcycle was one of the three wheel pick-up types. The motorcycle then careened sideways about 40 feet and across the highway and into the entrance to the store.

The Brown car was reported to have veered off in the same direction for a distance of about 30 feet and then come to rest on the highway.

It is believed Reilly was thrown from the motorcycle before it struck the store steps and he was thrown against the concrete steps which lead up to the front door. People in the store claimed that when the motorcycle crashed into the front of the building it was riderless. The front of the store was damaged, the plate glass window broken and the double screen door wrecked.

Dr. Eugene Galvin of Rosendale was summoned but Reilly was dead on arrival of the physician.

The motorcycle was considerably damaged and one of the rear wheels was broken. The Brown machine suffered some damage about the right front wheel and the bumper was broken.

No charges were made against Mr. Brown by the investigating officers.

The scene of the accident is by no means new to police officials. Several accidents have happened at the same point although the intersection is open and there are stop signs at the intersection. At least three fatal accidents have happened at the same point over the past few years. In one former accident the gas pumps at the store were damaged and set afire and the store damaged.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Reilly of West Esopus; a son, David Edward Reilly; two daughters, Lillian Dorothy and Alva Marie Reilly; a granddaughter, Elizabeth May Reilly; three sisters, Mrs. Edna Mowell, Mrs. Inga Marie Froedick and Miss Alva Beatrice Reilly, and a brother, Clinton DeWitt Reilly.

Funeral services will be held in the home in Rifton on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with burial in Wiltwyck cemetery, this city.

New York, May 19 (AP)—Greenwich Villagers feasted today upon a $1,500 vegetable plant, thanks to Meyer Hare. Hare was driving a three-ton truck along West street when its steering rod snapped. The truck promptly crashed through a store wall, scattering half of its $3,000 vegetable cargo on the street. Police told Hare to clean up or lose the vegetables to the street cleaning department. Hare invited onlookers to help themselves. They did.

Children Need Wartime Care

Emergencies Demand Protection, Consideration for Young Folks

Ithaca, N. Y. — The care and protection of children in wartime is needed in community defense work, according to the New York state college of home economics at Cornell University.

The children who most need care, they say, are those whose mothers are regularly employed outside of the home or who spend afternoons or evenings doing volunteer work. Other needs are recreational facilities for young people and help for high school age boys and girls to find things they can do toward the war effort.

These women have reported local problems to the college: Mrs. Edwin Plant of Madrid, Mrs. John Lavery of Genesee, and Mrs. John McPherson of Troy, who represented rural communities where the shortage of farm help causes trouble for the now. Mrs. Natalie Crowe of Williamsburg, Buffalo, and Mrs. Ruth Campbell of Mineola, near New York city, who represent urban and suburban communities where the sudden growth of war industries and nearness to airports bring about new conditions; Mrs. Sinclair Russell of Norwich who represents a small town with some war industries; and Mrs. John Cunningham of Warrensburg, who represents a resort town in a relatively safe section but designated as a reception area for evacuees.

Some intolerances complicate local situations, they say, such as that of permanent residents for transients and newcomers; of older persons for young people, of farm people for city people and vice versa. In the interests of national unity and real democracy, the college says that the country needs "to make war on intolerances wherever found."

Bodies of Couple Found, Also That of Adopted Son

Hutchinson, Kas., May 19 (AP)—The bullet-pierced bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Laws were found crumpled against the front door of their home last night.

Their adopted son, Eugene, 18, was found in a closet. With him were a gun and knife. He was shot in the head. He died an hour later.

Sheriff Guy Ankerholz said he believed the boy shot the man and woman as they attempted to escape through the front door and then went to the closet and shot himself. The closet was locked from the inside.

The sheriff said he was unable to suggest a motive. The boy died without speaking.

Suit for $35,000 Continues in Court

Clinton Avenue Church Is Named Defendant

Trial of the $35,000 action brought by Mrs. Martha Wells and her husband, Irving Wells, against the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church of this city, was continued in Supreme Court Monday afternoon, and an adjournment was taken until today when the action was continued.

Mrs. Wells seeks $25,000 for a fractured back and her husband seeks $10,000 for expenditures and loss of services.

The accident happened on November 3, 1940, when Mrs. Wells was leaving the Sunday School room to enter the church. Her heel caught on a binding strip on a stairway and she fell three steps suffering a back injury. Testimony indicated that she had injured her back, but remained at church until after the services, when her husband aided her in getting home. Later she was placed in a cast and remained in a cast for some time when a heavy brace was substituted. She has since worn a lighter type of brace.

Testimony was submitted to the effect that the strip of metal which was used to keep the stair covering in place had been loose prior to the accident. It was also loose after the accident.

John E. Mack and his son, Edward Mack, appear with Joseph Avis for plaintiff and Judge Andrew J. Cook and A. J. Cook, Jr., appear for the defendant.

THE FRUITS OF HOARDING

A news dispatch tells of a man who registered for a sugar ration book and reported that he had 15,000 pounds of sugar in his possession. When questioned, he said that he had feared a shortage two years ago and had been accumulating his gigantic stock ever since.

That is a particularly glaring example of the kind of action that, if widely followed even on a small scale, will make an extreme extension of rationing inevitable. In other words, hoarding makes scarcities—and scarcities, in turn, make iron-handed government control unavoidable. Some authorities have said that there would be no need for sugar rationing at this time had not purchases by the public increased to an abnormal level.

American merchants have been fighting hoarding. They have been urging the public to buy normally, and to pay no attention to wild rumors which say that practically everything we need will soon be unobtainable. That advice is 100 per cent worthwhile. If all of us follow it, there will be far fewer shortages, and rationing can be held to the minimum.

The American merchant is the consumer's best protection. That's true whether the merchant deals in clothing or general merchandise or food or hardware or anything else. The merchant knows conditions. He is in a far better position than the rest of us to anticipate what the future will bring. And when he says, "Don't hoard!" he simply talks common sense.

ALIEN POISON

The German threat of poison gas adds new fear to a war which has horrors enough. And when the threat appears on one side, the other side feels obliged to arm itself likewise, in self-defense. All of the belligerents now, including the United States, are said to be prepared along this line, or getting ready. Such a mode of warfare, perhaps more than any other, shames civilization. Americans fervently hope they will not have to use it.

Poison gas of the familiar types can be met, or weakened in its effects, by the use of gas masks, which are now being supplied to American fighting men.

More destructive so far in this war, and perhaps more perilous in the future, is the gas of poisonous propaganda. It operates more subtly than the chemical kind, and against it Americans have to be constantly on guard. It is often spread by pretended patriots and friends, who admit that enemies have done some objectionable things. But! They try to spread the belief that this country has no reason for getting into the war, that opposed nations are pretty much alike under the skin, that all have sinned, that the United States ruins itself to pull British chestnuts out of the fire, and so on. And any American who listens is being tempted by the Devil.

MONEY TO SAVE

The income of the American people—that is, the payments now being made to individuals in wages, dividends and so on—was at the rate of $106,000,000,000 at the end of March. It may be a billion or two more by this time. And needless to say, it is the most money this nation ever made. In the fat year of 1929 the total was nearly $83,000,000,000. In the ensuing depression it fell to about half that much.

This present, rising income is big money and it cannot last forever. The government, by holding prices down and making war materials instead of consumers' goods, gives people an unusual chance to save. Wise citizens are taking advantage of the opportunity. The best way to save, and to make the savings secure, is to buy war bonds. Homes, too, are good investments.

GAS IN CANADA

The Canadian gas ration announced previously this spring, of 100 imperial gallons per car, was going to make it necessary for tourists to drive wisely and thriftily, but it was enough to get from a border gate to an accustomed place of sure delight and home again, including a certain moderate amount of going to the village center for mail, marketing and ice. The present tourist ration, that of 20 gallons per car per year, is not enough. It is true that it amounts to 24 American gallons, but that is still not enough.

Canada needs the tourist trade so much that only a really serious shortage could cause the new restriction. But if severe rationing helps to lick the Axis, Canadians and Americans both will take it on the chin. They will put the Canadian vacations on the shelf for this summer, to be taken out and enjoyed all the more when peace comes. Fish not caught this season will grow bigger for next year.

POLITICS

Congressmen and other groups of politicians complain of a lack of interest in politics this year. Not in Washington especially, but back home. They say people won't pay any attention to political speeches and letters. The prospect is for a very light vote next fall.

The evident lack of strong partisan controversy at present is a wholesome phenomenon. The important thing now is a united war front. Citizens, of course, should vote according to their convictions, but a patriotic voter this year will naturally think of himself as a patriot rather than a partisan.

There is ample room for the practice of this principle alike by private citizens and by people in office. There must be a continuation of the two-party system which is normal in this country. It would be a great misfortune if either party were to grow futile. The American system, like every other free system, requires honest criticism and honest partisanship.

The enterprising Japs seem to have celebrated their Coral Sea victory very prematurely.

When in doubt, buy war bonds. Also when not in doubt.

This nation seems to be getting very thoroughly organized for one thing and another.

MIGRAINE ATTACKS CERTAIN TYPE

"Someone has divided headaches into three simple groups, namely, those that one can forget, those that one cannot forget, and those that make one forget everything else. The headache of migraine falls in the third group."

I am quoting Dr. John W. Scott, Edmonton, Alberta, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal. Notwithstanding that migraine makes the individual forget everything else, it does not seem to interfere with the general health and no one ever dies because of it. It is, however, a most prostrating ailment and, in addition to the headache, there is usually severe stomach and intestinal distress.

As there are no outward signs by which the physician can be guided, he must depend upon the statements of the sufferer which usually are that he first feels eye disturbances, dizziness, discomfort, and sometimes a feeling of unusual fatigue, followed a few hours later by the onset of the headache, nausea and vomiting.

A family history of periodic headache is present in 50 to 90 per cent of cases.

"The patient may show all the symptoms with each attack, that is preliminary symptoms, headache, nausea, vomiting and prostration." He may, however, show only a fraction of these symptoms, but the degree of symptoms is usually the same in each attack.

An interesting feature is that the attacks usually start in childhood or youth, with a tendency to disappear after the 50th year. Further, migraine patients "are usually alert, intelligent, emotional people, and usually are found in responsible positions in the world."

Dr. Scott suggests that the patient should be told that it is because of his high-strung or "high gear" make-up that he suffers with these attacks. "Overwork, fatigue, argument and emotional strain should be guarded against." Unfortunately this type of individual is not very apt to follow such advice.

As the cause of migraine is unknown there is no specific or special treatment but as the blood-vessels in the brain are dilated during an attack, the injection of ergotamine tartrate which tightens or partly closes the arteries in the brain brings relief in 75 to 90 per cent of cases.

Breathing in 100 per cent oxygen as recorded by Dr. Walter Alvarez, Mayo Clinic, stops most attacks.

Allergy

Sensitiveness to various foods and other substances sometimes causes severe headache, hay fever, eczema, skin eruptions and other symptoms. Send ten cents and a three-cent stamp for Dr. Barton's booklet "Allergy" (No. 106) to The Bell Library, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., mentioning the Kingston Daily Freeman.

Writes Henderson About Egg Crates

The Freeman has been requested to publish the following copy of a letter, which was sent by Jerome Hodes, secretary of the Ulster and Sullivan Marketing and Purchasing Co., Inc., to Leon Henderson, price administrator: Ulster and Sullivan Marketing and Purchasing Co., Inc., High Falls, N. Y., May 16, 1942.

Mr. Leon Henderson, Office of Price Administration, Dear Sir:

Our farmers' cooperative, which is under the supervision of the Farm Security Administration, is wholeheartedly in sympathy with your program, as long as it will help win the war, and the sooner the better.

Most of our members are poultrymen. We understand that you set a price for second hand egg crates with decent flats and fillers at 30 cents a piece, which is all right. However, it seems to us that your administration is lax in writing up the ceiling with effectiveness. It seems that racketeering is occurring. In other words those who handle egg crates find ways and means of getting around the law. For example around our way, we have to pay 31 cents for a second hand egg crate, and we cannot buy this crate unless we also buy a new one which cost 65 cents.

As you no doubt know, as far as poultrymen are concerned, a reconditioned used case is as good as a new case. Both cases together cost 96 cents, thereby bringing up the price of the used egg case to 48 cents. Mr. Henderson, we ask you for strict law enforcement and that used cases should be bought without any strings attached.

We are producing eggs to help win the war, give us the essentials necessary to carry on our jobs. Thank you, please reply. Very sincerely yours,

JEROME A. HODES,

Secretary.

Gasoline Rationing May Have Developed New Symbol of Special Privilege, the 'X' Club

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 19 — There may come into being as result of the gasoline rationing debate a new organization, somewhat imaginary to be sure, but significant of the trend of the times. It may be known as the "X" Club because it could become the symbol of special privilege in handing out public funds and favors and imposing restrictive laws irrespective of the principles of fairness or equity as they may apply to other citizens in the country. Here are some conspicuous examples of special privilege which Congress has done nothing as yet to remedy:

1. The farm group over the protest of the President gets 110 per cent of parity and also is given financial subsidies notwithstanding the argument that inflation is thus encouraged.

2. The labor group with the acquiescence of the President gets "union maintenance" or compulsory unionization notwithstanding the bill of rights which implies that right to work in America is inalienable and cannot be abridged by any private organization.

3. The department of justice finds time to go back into the 1920's to discover technical reasons for prosecuting during war time today the production managers of many important companies busily engaged in war tasks but shuts its eyes to the violations of the federal corrupt practices act by high personages in connection with the 1936 and 1940 campaigns.

4. The New Deal judges who rule that it isn't a violation of the anti-trust laws to use physical violence and conduct a sit down strike, actually stopping shipments of goods from such a plant as the Apex Manufacturing Company in Philadelphia but it is a violation for manufacturers to try to prevent retailers from gyping the public in installment sale financing.

5. The Supreme Court majority which in the Hutchinson case exempted union labor from prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust law even though the effect of the union's activities was to restrain trade and keep the costs of housing up to high levels.

6. The treasury department which rules that lecturers, actors and celebrities who give their services free to charitable organizations need not count as a part of their incomes the constructive value of their personal services to Congress, the colleges, churches and charitable institutions struggling to survive in war time shall be permitted to receive only a limited amount of bequests from the estate of philanthropists.

7. The Senate of the United States which passed the Wagner law after assuring the public the act meant that no man need join a union to get a job or keep a job. Yet the Senate permits the War Labor Board to make dues payment a condition of employment and refuses to pass any legislation governing labor unions.

8. The War Labor Board itself insists that employers must discriminate as between two sets of employees—firing some for not paying dues because they were once members of a union and keeping fellow-workmen in their jobs even though they do not pay dues to a union because they happen not to be members. This gives financial preference to the relatively few—the union organizers and paid officers—but denies freedom of action to the many workers who are forced to pay dues and under union law cannot withdraw from a union once they have joined.

9. The members of Congress who hesitate to pass a sales tax because it might work hardship on low income groups and yet permit without protest the labor organizations to collect dues and initiation fees from those same groups amounting in some cases to a tax of three per cent a month on all earnings.

The list could be extended to cover many other items of class legislation and executive decision that have been recorded during the last eight or nine years in Washington has gradually brushed aside principles of equity both with respect to human rights and property rights. Special privilege existed to be sure under the preceding administrations, especially in the enactment of tariff laws but two wrongs do not make a single right.

It was Thomas Jefferson, founder of the Democratic party, who proclaimed the principle of equal rights for all and special privileges for none. So maybe some day when the people fully understand the issues the "X" Club will be spelled another way—the "Ex" Club of former legislators and officials who didn't follow Thomas Jefferson.

Kingston district of the insurance company, leaving here in 1921 to take charge of the Hartford, Conn., branch. He served 11 years in Hartford before retiring.

I remember that in 1921 when Mr. Mahar was preparing to leave Kingston for Hartford he was tendered a farewell banquet which was held in St. Mary's school hall, and attended by many of the most prominent men in the city, both Catholic and Protestant.

Mr. Mahar while in Kingston was very active in both the religious and civic life of the city, serving as health board member and also as a member of the Chamber of Commerce. He still numbers his friends in Kingston by the hundreds.

I recall that one of the best known hotel men in Kingston was George W. Palmer who in May, 1922, was planning to purchase the well known Tamney House in New Paltz, one of the best known hotels in southern Ulster.

Mr. Palmer at one time conducted the former old Mansion House on Broadway, at West Strand, and widely known not only in the city but throughout Ulster county.

Home City, Kas. (AP) — No war time splash in the pan is the business (in a man's field) that Mr. Paul Kaufman and Miss Anna Schrieber have built at Home City. They are paperhangers and have been in the business for 25 years. It is papering their shop right as not to interfere with business. They're always in a rush to finish a job to see what the room looks like.

Other readers will recall the McBride ice cream and confectionery store on O'Neill street, a few doors in from Broadway where Mr. McBride was engaged in business for many years.

I recall that Mr. McBride was very active in the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church. I also recall his son the late Charles L. McBride, who was a well known druggist on upper Broadway. The drug business is now continued by his family.

Charles L. McBride was a member of the Board of Health during the administration of Mayor Palmer Canfield. Others on the board in those years were Samuel Brown, the well known contracting plumber, and John E. Mahar. Mrs. M. J. Michael, wife of the superintendent of schools, was also an active member in those years, as well as the late Dr. Frederick Huhne.

And speaking of Mr. Mahar, the other day I ran across a clipping which told of his retiring after a service of 43 years with the Prudential Insurance Co. Mr. Mahar retired in May, 1932.

For a number of years Mr. Mahar was superintendent of the

Would Be Cadets
On Thursday, May 14, 24 hopeful young men made the trip by auto to Fordham University to take part of their physical tests for admittance into the Army Air Corp. These 24 students are all seniors in K. H. S.

On May 18 Mr. Connick of the local high school faculty made the trip to Albany to make appointments for the completion of their physical and mental tests.

Girl Chosen
In an election held recently Miss Charlotte Cooper was chosen by the junior girls to represent them at the summer conference to be sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion. This conference is held so that those who attend will return to their own schools and teach their fellow students what they learned at the conference.

The excuses for the delay have been many. The one that holds the most water is that Congress and the government would have been foolish NOT to gear big business to the war effort first.

According to Rep. Wright Patman of Texas, one of the authors of the small business bill, experts informed the small business congressional committee that of the 184,000 small manufacturing plants in the country, some 45,000 could be converted to the war effort and that these non-war producing plants represent almost 50 per cent of our entire productive potentialities. If that is true, then the productive efforts of this country haven't really been tapped, in spite of all the glowing accounts of progress that have come from the War Production Board and other official sources.

The proposed bill (it may be different in its final form) provides broadly for two things: (1) A small business division in WPB that will expedite contracts and subcontracts to small manufacturers and otherwise cut red tape in seeing that their production potentialities are used. (2) The establishment of a Small War Plants Corporation, with $100,000,000 to start, which would have authority to make loans for conversion and financing on war contracts.

Teacher Guides Party to Safety in Australian Port

Melbourne, May 19 (AP).—Twenty-four men, women and children, among them a baby born in an open boat on the high seas, have escaped Japanese internment and reached Australia after five hazardous weeks, thanks to the courage and fortitude of a Dutch woman schoolteacher.

Toward the end of March, after the collapse of Allied resistance in Java, the Dutch community of one little island heard the Japanese planned to deport it to Ambon, where most of the European residents of the eastern Netherlands East Indies archipelago were interned.

The teacher not only resolved to make a break out to warn Europeans of other smaller islands of what was coming.

One dark night she left the island with a few fellow countrymen and several loyal Malays in a small craft.

For weeks the little group braved storms, Japanese planes and the constant danger of capture by Japanese soldiers as they proceeded from one island to another. At one of the first stops, the teacher's party was joined by another Dutch woman with a three-year-old child, and two Dutch soldiers who had escaped from a prison camp.

The augmented party set out in the little craft and after an agonizing journey in which Japanese planes flew over several times, and they were alternately buffeted by waves or becalmed out of sight of land, they reached a group of islands.

Six Dutch adults and six children were waiting after completing a dangerous trip from a distant outpost of the East Indian archipelago.

One of the children was an infant only a few days old, born in a little boat during the voyage. There the party obtained a motor launch and the entire group—now numbering 17—started south for the last islands on the way to Australia, later picking up still other refugees.

Back row, standing in the same order, Robert Donarumma, Nicholas Bruck, John Whittaker, William B. Byrne, Peter J. Halloran, Joseph F. Sullivan and Michael Abdallah.

Governor Vetoes Deduction Bills

Lehman Cuts Out Hospital Expenses, Children Over 18 as Lawful

Albany, N. Y., May 19 (AP).—Bills which would have allowed state income taxpayers to make deductions for hospital expenses and for children over 18 still in school or college were vetoed today by Governor Lehman.

The governor, refusing to "substantially reduce state revenues" further, pointed out he had already signed into law drastic reductions in state income tax payments.

"This year, on my recommendation, there was eliminated the one per cent emergency income tax and the regular income tax was reduced by 25 per cent for the current year and next," he said. "As a result, on many incomes the net saving to taxpayers is already approximately one-half."

Bringing the number of new laws to 873, Lehman signed a bill allowing state employees who join the armed forces or accept defense jobs to continue their state retirement system payments and remain eligible for benefits.

Retroactive to March 1, 1940, the measure grants leaves of absence to such employees until six months after the war's end.

Navy Recruiter to Visit City to Enlist More Men

The local Navy recruiter serving Ulster county, will be at the Kingston Post Office Building, on Thursday, May 21, from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. to examine applicants for enlistment in the United States Navy and the Naval Reserve. Applicants are requested to bring their birth certificate with them. Ages are from 17 to 30. Men may now be enlisted in the Naval Reserve for two years and be ordered to active duty in a short time. There are many petty officer ratings open for tradesmen. Any applicant, who has had some training in a trade, will have the opportunity to finish his line of work. There are still several stickers on hand for the families of men serving in the Navy. These stickers are attractive and can be used on the window of your home. They read, "There is a man from this family in the Navy." Parents are requested to bring proof that their loved ones are serving in the Navy.

Former Mayor Dies

Watertown, N. Y., May 19 (AP).—Former Mayor Daniel W. Cahill, 78, under indictment of a first degree murder charge in the strangulation death of his wife, died last night of an embolism. Awaiting trial on the charge, he was to have been examined by a sanity commission today. District Attorney Carl J. Hynes said Cahill told him he strangled his wife with a bathrobe cord April 19 because she was ill with a nervous disorder. Cahill later attempted suicide, Hynes said, by taking an overdose of sleeping tablets.

Reformed Church Reports of Synods Show Advancement

The reports of the five Particular Synods of the Reformed Church in America held the first week in May, and which have been compiled and now released, show that the year has been one of advance for the denomination.

There are now 725 churches, a gain of three; 869 ministers, a loss of one; 92,631 families, a gain of 919. There were 7,419 received into the church on confession of faith, 1,323 more than last year, and 4,359 on certificate, 579 more. The losses for the year from dismissals, discipline, dropped and died amount to 10,564 or 3,519 more than last year. The one item of dropped alone is 2,938 more. The denomination now has 163,785 members or 670 more. There are 34,124 absentees which is 589 less and 24,352 adherents, a gain of seven. Children baptized number 3,522, 1,350 less, and adults baptized, 1,063, 230 more. The number of catechumens is 28,668, a loss of 680. There are 777 Bible schools, a gain of one, with an enrollment of 131,541, a loss of 2,782.

The financial part shows that $719,681 was raised for denominational benevolence (missions, etc.), a gain of $49,948, $132,851 for benevolences outside the denomination a loss of $8,563, and for the local churches $3,514,989, a gain of $196,280.

These figures are not official and may be slightly changed in the final report to Synod, but they are probably approximately correct. Word has been received by the Board of Foreign Missions that several missionaries interned on the Island of Kiangsu, Amoy harbor, China, are to come home on a special transport, reported to be sailing from Japan in late April or early May with the diplomatic representatives of our country detained in enemies' territory. The missionaries who are expected to return are: The Rev. H. J. Yokul, the Rev. E. W. Koppe, Mrs. William Vander Meer and her two children, Mrs. W. R. Angus and her three children and Miss Geraldine C. Smies.

There are still on Kiangsu: Miss Edna K. Beekman, Miss Katharine R. Green, Miss Jeanette Veldman, the Rev. Henry A. Poppen, D. D., the Rev. H. M. Veenschoten and Dr. Theodore V. Oltman. Miss Flora Darrow and Miss Sara M. Couch are still in Japan. This year the boards of the church are to issue only one printed report for all the boards instead of separate reports for all the boards as formerly.

At the pre-Synod conference, which will be held in the First Reformed Church of Albany, there will be four conferences: (1) Evangelism through personal counseling, led by the Rev. Seward Hiltner of New York; (2) The Gospel for the boys in our camps by Chaplain George I. Robertson of the U. S. Army; (3) Home to Home Visitation, by Oliver K. Black of New York; (4) Methods for Children and Young People, by Miss Claire L. White, also of New York.

There will be a forum of questions and answers on Thursday morning led by Elder Frederick E. Bauer of Jersey City.

Mack Named Surrogate

Edward J. Mack, son of former Supreme Court Justice John E. Mack of Poughkeepsie, has been appointed surrogate of Dutchess county by Governor Lehman to fill out the unexpired term of the late Daniel Gleason. Mr. Mack will serve until the end of the year but will be a candidate for election to the office in the fall. Announcement of the appointment came as Mr. Mack and his father were engaged in trial here before Supreme Court Monday.

Your Army Needs Rubber

The worn-out tire in the corner of the garage, the leaky hot-water bottle, the old galoshes. . . They aren't of any use, but they're more precious than gold. The army needs every scrap of rubber the nation can dig out of its cellars and attics and garages. It takes three-quarters of a pound of reclaimed rubber to make a gas mask, 30 pounds to make a tire for a big bomber. And 45,000 pounds go into the building of a battleship.

Adventists Hold Opening Service On Smith Avenue

On Saturday, May 16, the Seventh-day Adventists of this city held their opening service at their newly renovated church home at 124 Smith avenue. Services started at 10 o'clock in the morning and were concluded at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Guest speakers at this opening service were Elder C. M. Bunker, president, and J. B. Frank, secretary-treasurer of the Greater New York Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists, New York city. Also Elders W. R. Andrews and V. C. Townsend, who at one time served as pastors of this district.

The church, at one time owned by the Oberbaugh family of this city, was purchased by the congregation through the Shattuck Realty Co. Nicholas Schwartz was given the contract to remodel and redecorate the first floor for the sacred services. The second floor will be used for church activities, which will include a parochial school.

The first floor, which has been redecorated with craftex, floored with hardwood, and illuminated with fluorescent lighting, presents an appearance appropriate for sacred worship. Visiting church officials commended the church on the tasteful manner in which the work has been done.

The opening service was attended by about 150 members and friends, and the sacred musical program presented by the choir, the King's quartet, and individual soloists during the day added to the spiritual pleasure of the day and were enjoyed by all.

Continued work and repairs will be expanded on this property to restore it to a position it once enjoyed in the city of Kingston in former years.

G. E. Appleyard, pastor of the Adventist Churches of Ulster and Greene counties since October, 1939, wishes to extend to all, on behalf of the church members, a cordially welcome. Services are on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Uses 'Hooded Boom' For Grape Spraying

Geneva, N. Y., May 18—An attachment for the spray rig described as a "hooded boom" and which insures satisfactory coverage of foliage and fruit when spraying grapes has been devised by E. F. Taschenberg, entomologist at the State Experiment Station here. The device is described and illustrated in a mimeographed publication available upon request to the Station.

One of the chief difficulties in the effective spraying of grapes for the control of the leafhopper, a troublesome insect pest of grapes, is in hitting the undersides of the leaves thus insuring that the spray material comes in contact with the insects, explains Mr. Taschenberg. Also, in the control of the grape-berry moth, it is essential that the young grapes be thoroughly coated with the spray material. Furthermore, effective control of grape diseases, such as downy and powdery mildew and black rot, is dependent upon covering the foliage and fruit with a film of the fungicide.

Correct placement of sprays is readily achieved on calm days by the proper arrangement of the nozzles on the boom, but the air is seldom quiet and the wind may prevent a thorough application. "To overcome the effects of the wind, someone invented a hood having a boom enclosed and which is carried by the spray rig," says Mr. Taschenberg, who continues, "this outfit envelops the vines while the treatment is being made. A hooded boom was used in Michigan about 1939 and since then has been employed in the principal grape-growing areas of the Great Lakes region. The device is not adapted to hillside vineyards, however."

Experiments carried on by the station in Chautauque county for the control of the grape-berry moth were scattered a distance of more than 30 miles in 1940 and about 20 miles in 1941. This necessitated a hooded boom that could be quickly erected and disassembled in order to move the truck-mounted sprayer on the highways and led to the development of equipment described in the station publication.

Better Business Criticizes Use of Stamps in Buying

Many Forms of Activity Noted to Cheat Public, Head of Bureau in Nation Reports

Chicago, May 19 (AP).—Kenneth Barnard, chairman of the War Activities Committee of the National Association of Better Business Bureaus, today criticized merchants who, he said, were attempting to encourage the use of war stamps as currency in exchange for goods.

Barnard also said better business bureaus noted a growth in promotion of bogus patriotic events in which promoters got most or all the money; a sudden emergence of automobile repair shops operated primarily to mulct the public; the use of questionable advertising in the sale of black-out materials and expansion of complaints against second hand appliance dealers.

"Some merchants are accepting stamps in place of money," Barnard said in an interview, "which negates one purpose of the war stamp sales program—to prevent inflation."

"Instead of becoming a method of saving, war stamps thus become another medium of exchange—a new kind of money. Reputable merchants must act to end this misuse of war stamps, and the public should realize the stamps are a method of saving, not a different form of currency."

Barnard said some merchants were using stamps to lure trade by giving war stamps with purchases. "It is obvious that the merchant isn't giving anything away," he said. "He's just adding the price of the stamp to the merchandise."

"Probably the worst abuse, however, has been the growth of war stamps as prizes in gambling games in which skill plays no part. Some theatres, deprived of bank nights, are hiding behind a fake patriotism in awarding stamps as prizes. Most states prohibit such gambling activities, and the use of war stamps should not conceal the illegality of these games."

"The bogus promoter has substituted patriotism for charity as his basic appeal. He is giving dances, festivals and similar events, ostensibly for relief of the army, navy and other organizations. In reality, he takes the money."

On the east and west coasts, Barnard declared, merchants have advertised goods which they claimed was official blackout material or had the approval of the Office of Civilian Defense. There is no official material, Barnard stated, and no specific product has the approval of the O.C.D.

Program Is Given For Graduation At Bard College

The morning of the 82nd Commencement of Bard College began with the Alumni Corporate Communion, May 15, celebrated by the Rev. Dr. Lyford P. Edwards. It was followed by a meeting of the Board of Trustees at 11 o'clock at which Ward Melville, chairman of the Board, presided.

At 12:40 o'clock luncheon was served to the whole college community and guests in the Dining Commons. Commencement exercises began at 2:30 o'clock and was delivered by Dr. Harry J. Carman, professor of history at Columbia University and member of the Board of Higher Education of New York. His topic was "What Lies Ahead." He dealt with the problems of post-war world reconstruction, for which he outlined a ten-point program. Afterwards the degrees were conferred and academic prizes announced.

Friday afternoon brought the Baccalaureate Service, in which the Rev. Dr. Lyford P. Edwards was the celebrant. The sermon was delivered by Dean Charles Harold Gray, who dwelt on the bible words of Cain: "Am I my Brother's Keeper?" Dean Gray explained the meaning of these words for our own times. He discussed many of the great political issues of this war, the problems of nationalism, and isolationism, hands-off policy and the white man's burden. Dean Gray stated that there would be no peace of mind for us unless we resolved the quarrel that is between the two impulses prevailing in the world—that of the Nazi ideology and our own—and he stated the heavy responsibility that rests on us who believe in these values as truth, justice, liberty, kindness and dignity of work.

The college dinner which followed the Baccalaureate Service was attended by trustees, faculty, students and the families of the graduating class. Dean Charles Harold Gray made the following announcement relative to resignations from the faculty: Edward Voorhees, associate professor of English literature (at present on leave of absence) had resigned in order to devote himself to writing and civilian defense work; the Rev. Richard W. Day, chaplain and instructor in religion, had resigned in order to take a chaplaincy in the army; Orlando Grossi, head of the art department, had resigned in order to do defense work; Henry Billings of Rhinebeck, instructor in fine arts, also in the future will give his time to defense work; William Cooper, teaching assistant in economics, will join the armed forces.

The following four members of the faculty have been promoted: Dr. Abbott E. Smith, vice-chairman of the faculty and associate professor of history to professor of history; Dr. Adolf F. Sturmthal, assistant professor of economics, to professor of economics; Dr. Carlton C. Qualey, assistant professor of history, to associate professor; and Dr. Felix E. Hirsch, librarian and associate in German, to librarian and assistant professor in literature.

The next to speak was James Freeborn, former chairman of the board of trustees and still a member of the executive committee. He gave a review of the progress that the college made during his incumbency and expressed, in particular, an appreciation of the services of Dean Charles Harold Gray. He concluded with advice to the members of the graduating class.

Then Horace Pozzo, an exchange student from Argentina and also a teaching assistant in Spanish, gave impressions of his happy experiences in this country and at Bard College in particular. Dr. Abbott E. Smith spoke for the faculty; Wayne Horvitz, president of the senior class, gave the highlights of the career of the class of 1942. Finally, Ward Melville of New York new chairman of the board of trustees, expressed the faith that the outgoing class would do a better job in the world than the past generation. His speech was delivered in the dark, since it began just when the blackout came. His reflections, however, kept the audience fully attentive.

Jolly Efficient, These Girls, Is General Opinion Held By Canadian Army Officers

By SIGRID ARNE
Victoria, B. C., May 19—(Wide World)—Canada's army generals—even the older "pip-pips" from the last war—probably would say about the United States Women's Auxiliary army:

"Go ahead and put your women in the army. They're proving jolly efficient up here."

Canada's army began to take in women months ago. There now are 2,500 to 3,000 in the army, and another 3,000 in the air force—the first time in Canada's history.

The women are mustering in so fast that no one is quite sure of the number. It started here in Victoria, the country's western-most city.

At first, Canadian women, when they joined the army, could register preference for duty at home or overseas. But now they sign on "for the duration, and a year after," and "for anywhere they'll be needed."

Most of them wanted overseas duty anyway, and the first will be going overseas with their units early this summer.

Canada's army women are not a separate unit.

They simply sign into any army unit where they can release a man for a real fighting job. That's the object for enlisting them: To take men off behind-the-lines jobs.

So far the women are doing the following jobs:

They keep office records; they run army telephones and telegrams; they cook in mess halls; they assist in dental labs and hospitals; they work in warehouses keeping stores of uniforms, guns and ammunition, and they're so good at this they're trusted to salvage parts of worn-out guns; they drive staff cars and light trucks; and they must be able to repair them.

It's odd to watch the staff car parking lot at the western Pacific command headquarters. The loudspeaker bellows, for instance, "driver Olson."

"Olson" turns out to be a pretty, blonde girl who pops out of the first car in the lineup, dashes in for her orders, dashes out again in time to open the car door for a "leftenant colonel."

The two salute. She slips into the driver's seat, and they're off. That's high noon or midnight, since the army doesn't pamper the women—once they're in, they must take it as it comes, and they're leaning over backward to do it.

Even with "flats." Everyone wondered what would happen after the first flat tire. It happened right on a Victoria main street. The woman driver popped efficiently around to the toolbox. The officer in the back seat looked unhappy for a minute, but then he nonchalantly lit a cigaret and went for a stroll.

Startled pedestrians watched from the sidewalk. Soldiers on leave hesitated, but then they saw something so gallant about the busy woman. However, the jack wouldn't stay up. Three times it plopped. That was too much for five men privates. They took over the job.

It finally turned out the jack was no good, the men were tremendously relieved that the woman—had the jack been good—really needed no help, although she got it.

There's a slight difference about uniforms for men and women. You just can't issue "small, medium, large" to women. So each woman is measured for her outfit—and they're quite natty. They're khaki-colored wool, single-breasted jackets and gored skirts. Khaki shirt, brown ties, tan gloves and oxfords. The cap has a visor and a back flap that buttons down over the neck a la Foreign Legion.

Women Can't Be Obvious

The women may wear makeup, but it can't be "obvious." Their hair must be shorter than their jacket collars, so they either roll it up or cut it short. They're doing their own disciplining on talking too much.

They live right in the same camps as the men. And the general report proudly the sex question seems to have evaporated (with the war).

Men and women eat in the same mess halls, sing around the same piano in the recreation rooms, and buy candy bars and smokes at the same canteens.

The women have separate barracks, however, and the army has thoughtfully put washbasins and ironing boards in the women's quarters. That's been a lifesaver, because the women's uniforms are slow coming through. They all have only one jacket. Night fall finds lady privates and lady majors pressing out wrinkles at adjoining ironing-boards.

So far, men of lower rank don't have to salute women of higher rank. But many do.

That's because there's a tradition in the Canadian Army. You're not really in until you get a "King's Commission." That's a piece of parchment which says the King really knows that you—Joe Doakes—are "bearing true allegiance to his Majesty King George the Sixth." The women didn't get that at first. Now they will, and shortly the men privates will be saluting the lady subalterns.

By the way, women in the lowest ranks are not called "privates." They're "volunteers."

The women are paid from 90 cents a day to the $20 paid Senior Command Joan Kennedy, a pretty Victorian woman now in Ottawa directing the enlistment of women.

The women have been coming in faster than the barracks could be built at various Canadian Army posts. So those who must live out get $1 to $1.70 a day subsistence.

That's not enough, but the women are spending their own money to make up the difference.

They're mustered in all districts now, but each woman gets three weeks of special training at St. Anne de Bellevue, near Montreal, where they use the dormitories of one time McDonald College.

The highest women's rank—that is, Mrs. Kennedy—is equal to a lieutenant colonel. In all ranks women are paid two-thirds the men's pay. But Canadian soldiers are paid higher than American soldiers.

At first the army took only women 21 to 40 years old. Now that's been changed to conform with the men—18 to 45.

The women recruits must pass the army medical test. They must have eighth grade education; have no sons under 16 or daughters under 18; and they must be British subjects. If they're single, they may marry six months after entering the army, but they must get permission.

Many of the women are married to men already overseas. On the other hand, the senior Commander Kennedy's husband is a civil servant working in Victoria.

Forget Special Talents

The women have to forget their "special abilities" once in khaki. The two Baguette sisters—Canadian radio entertainers—are now radio assistants here at the Gordon head officers' training camp. They pluck their guitars only in the evening.

And the men don't run in the rear direction when the women invade the recreation hall. The "running" seems to be in reverse. Fact is, the men are fighting a woman's battle. Rules say women must wear their uniforms at all times—even at dances. The men want that changed so the women soldiers can chug along an evening dress. The women are ignoring the argument.

The move to take women into the army started here for two reasons:

First, Mrs. Kennedy started a women's auxiliary here three years ago which did so much to lighten army chores that the men wanted the women as regular army personnel.

Second, the commander-in-chief of the western Pacific area, Maj. Gen. R. O. Alexander, is a famous Canadian breaker-of-precedents. After several conferences he recommended enlistment of women to Ottawa. Ottawa sent out Matron Elizabeth Smellie, chief of army nurses, to confer with other post commanders. The vote was "yes."

So much "yes" that here's a story the men tell on themselves:

It seems a woman driver was detailed to take an officer to a west coast camp. Half way she asked if she might stop to pick wild flowers. He "harumph-ed" and said, "yes."

She grabbed flowers hurriedly on the left side of the road, rushed back to the car, rammed in the gears, and tore along to make up for lost time. But when she arrived at the camp the back seat was empty!

They discovered the general hoofing, quite rattled, into camp. He had sneaked out on the right side of the road—to pick wild flowers.

there were 14 present. The next regular meeting will be held at the parsonage Friday, June 19, when final arrangements will be completed for their sale. The July meeting is to be at the home of Miss Leona Merrihew.

Last Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Claude Barringer of Wawarsing visited at the home of Mrs. Barringer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wager.

Church school next Sunday morning will be held at 10 o'clock. Morning divine worship service will be held at 11 o'clock with sermon by the pastor. The subject of sermon will be "Christ in The Midst."

Many from here are planning to attend the strawberry and ice cream party at the Young People's Community Club, in Lyonsville next Wednesday evening for the benefit of Lyonsville Reformed Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crispell of Olive Bridge last Sunday visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenford Davis.

Government Debt Soars

Washington, May 18 (AP)—The government debt jumped $2,785,505,341 to a new record high of $73,434,700,147 in the first half of May. One of the largest increases in any similar period in the treasury's history, the new debt figure speeded up borrowing to pay for war costs.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, May 18—Mr. and Mrs. Silas Terwilliger are spending some time at their studio here.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephan Vreeland motored to Woodstock and spent the week-end here.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffin Herrick and daughter, Barbara, and Mrs. Goodrich arrived in Woodstock after spending the winter in Oakland, Calif.

Mrs. Ripper has taken the Willard Shultis cottage for a year. Mr. Shultis is doing some work at present at the O'Mera house and studio.

Woodstock, May 19—The following is the Memorial Day program for Woodstock:

Joseph F. Friedberg, a member of the Woodstock Post, has donated a cup to be awarded to the school children, who march in the Memorial Day parade. This cup will be given to the school making the most points, as follows:

The percentage of the enrolled children of the school marching in the parade—40 points.
Department—20 points.
Appearance—20 points.
Marching order—20 points.

All schools located in the town of Woodstock, including Daisy, also West Hurley and Glenford, all of which are invited to attend the memorial services and form a part of the parade.

At 9:30 a. m., the parade will form on the north side of Woodstock road, in front of the former Risley farm house, now the Village Inn.

At 9:45 o'clock the parade will start the line of march to the Town Hall. The Woodstock Junior Band will furnish the parade music.

The Rev. Matthew Chambers preached in the town of Rifton, Connolly and Eddyville Sunday.

Mr. Chambers was recently granted a license as a local preacher.

The Rudolph galleries and the Shop Around the Corner are now opened for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Frederick Folio, who ran these shops last summer, have returned to Woodstock after spending the winter in Florida.

PORT EWEN

Poppy Drive to Start

Port Ewen, May 19—The annual "Buddy" poppy drive for welfare funds for the American Legion and Legion Auxiliary will be held in the town of Esopus this week. The drive is under the direction of Mrs. Herman DuBois of Kingston with Mrs. Culver Ten Brock, auxiliary publicity chairman, in charge of the work.

Port Ewen. She will be assisted in the drive by Mrs. Charles Atkins, Sons of Legion and Girl and Boy Scout troops. Any profit derived from this work is used in the welfare work for the men or their families, who have seen service with the armed forces either in the present conflict or in any former wars.

Village Notes

Port Ewen, May 19—Mrs. Louis Raab spent last week at her home in New York.

Grant Oakley of Poughkeepsie is spending a few days with his daughter, Mrs. Culver Ten Brock, Troop 26, Boy Scouts, will meet this evening at 7:15 o'clock in the scout hall in the Reformed Church.

Mrs. Amelia Rose and daughter, Miss Joan Rose, moved today from the Taylor house on South Broadway to the Ellsworth house on Salem street.

The Presentation Women's Club will hold a card party in St. Leo's Hall in Friday evening, May 22, at 8:15 o'clock. The public is invited.

The drum corps competed in the All-America Day parade in Poughkeepsie Sunday.

Stop Chewing Rubber

Pensive stenographers must stop nibbling the erasers of their pencils. One hundred and eighty tons of rubber were into making pencil erasers last year. This year they're going into the making of 200,000 Army gas masks. Chewing gum is still five cents a package...and the Japs are in Malaya.

Let Garden Hose Leak

Leaky garden hoses will be in fashion this year. And next year. And until the war is won. ## LEW AYRES IN THE ARMY NOW

Movie Star Lew Ayres (right, front) falls in with other inductees in Portland, Ore., as he reported for duty with the army's non-combat service. He arrived at the induction station from a conscientious objectors' camp at Wyeth, Ore. Ayres explained that he was still a conscientious objector but that duty with a medical detachment, to which he probably will be assigned, did not conflict with his beliefs.

Legionnaires Hear From Men in Camp

Letter Shows Appreciation of Local News

Pvt. Joseph Berardi, whose parents reside at 142 Hooker street and who is stationed at Moore Field, Mission, Texas, took the offer of the local Legion Post "of being ever ready to serve the boys in the army in any way possible" quite seriously.

In a letter this morning from Pvt. Berardi, addressed to the Kingston Post 150, of the American Legion, he conveys the following news in behalf of 38 local men, all of them now in the service:

Mr. Nelson W. Snyder, Kingston Post 150, 18 West O'Reilly St., Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Sir:

Your letter of April 30 was received and read by all of the Kingston boys with a great deal of interest.

I can assure you that the boys would be extremely grateful if you could make arrangements to have three copies of the Kingston Daily Freeman mailed us here at the field. Your suggestion that the three copies be sent to one person is an excellent one, and after discussing this with the boys it was agreed that the package be mailed to me and I will see that the papers get the fullest distribution among the boys.

We realized at the time that the request for card tables might be impractical because of the excessive freight cost, but the need is so great for such things around here that we took the chance to broach it. This being a relatively new field our recreation building is completely bare of all these conveniences.

Thanks a lot for your prompt response to our letters. Regards from the boys.

Sincerely,
PVT. JOSEPH V. BERARDI,

MOTHER OF SIX SONS IN SERVICE

Mrs. Isabel Howitt of New York city (above), wears a six-star service pin presented to her by Manhattan Borough President Edgar J. Nathan in recognition of her six-sons' service with the Allied armed forces. Four of her sons are with the armed forces of the United States. One is serving with the Scottish Highlanders. The sixth was honorably discharged from the British Navy because of injuries he sustained when the ship on which he served was torpedoed and sunk in the Atlantic.

Treatment for Lima Bean Seed Proves Highly Effective

New Organic Chemical

Proves Highly Effective

Geneva, N. Y., May 18—A new organic material used as a seed protectant on lima bean seed for the first time last year gave such excellent results that the tests are to be repeated this season, according to Dr. George L. McNew, plant disease specialist at the State Experiment Station here. The new substance is known as "Spergon."

Most chemical seed treatments which give satisfactory results with other vegetable seeds cause a hardening of the seed coat when applied to lima bean seed.

The marked benefits of Spergon as a seed protectant were first observed in the treating of pea seeds two or three years ago. Last year it was tried for the first time on Henderson lima bean seed on several farms in western New York. A summary of the 1941 results appears in a recent issue of "The Canner" and the experiments are to be continued this coming season.

"The treated seed were planted alongside untreated seed in acre plots," relates Dr. McNew, who continues, "plants grown from treated seed produced from 100 to 700 pounds more shelled beans per acre than plants from untreated seed. About one ounce of Spergon is required to treat sufficient seed to plant an acre. At this rate, the profit from the increased yields obtained in the five tests made last season would range from $3 to $28."

The preferred rate of application is from 1 1/4 to 2 ounces of the chemical per bushel of lima bean seed. For small quantities of seed Spergon can be applied fairly easily by shaking the seed and chemical together in a closed fruit jar. Where a large field is to be planted the chemical should be applied in a rotary drum or barrel churn by rotating the seed and chemical for 4 or 5 minutes at 30 revolutions per minute. The important thing in both cases is to make certain that each seed is completely coated with the chemical to insure complete protection against disease organisms.

Survivors Reach Indies

Willemstad, Dutch West Indies, May 18 (AP)—Nineteen survivors of a United States freighter were brought here today and reported that an Axis submarine, after sinking their ship Saturday night near the Island of Bonaire, machinegunned the crew in lifeboats. The survivors were landed first on Bonaire and brought to Willemstad by plane.

Roosevelt Might Ration Spending

Developments Will Rule Whether This Is to Be Done by Treasury

Washington, May 19 (AP)—The individual spending money of Americans may be rationed later, depending on developments, treasury officials indicated today, but at least for the present such a plan has been abandoned to give President Roosevelt's seven-point anti-inflation program a trial.

A treasury spokesman and other officials said that the proposal for rationing individual spending money was given consideration not only by the treasury but by other government agencies as well when surveys were being made of all kinds of anti-inflation possibilities before Mr. Roosevelt decided on his seven-point plan.

The program outlined by the President featured higher taxes, a $25,000 limit on individual income after taxes, overall price ceilings, wage stabilization, credit control, intensified war bond sales on a voluntary basis, and modification of the farm parity formula to permit price regulation of farm products at parity instead of at 110 per cent of parity.

The treasury spokesman indicated he saw no prospect for revival of the plan, but cautioned that later events might cause it to be given further study.

The rationing of private expenditures was considered as a possible substitute for the rationing of goods, the theory being that the pressure to raise prices would be relieved if the government limited the percentage of a person's income which could be spent for different things.

Germans Engage In Cattle and Hog Slaughter Program

Lisbon, May 19 (AP)—Although the normal consumer gets less than 12 ounces of meat each week in Germany, the government has been engaged for some time in an emergency program of slaughtering cattle and hogs.

Suckling calves are being killed to save milk and medium-weight hogs butchered to conserve potatoes and other foods.

The butchering of calves is described as a temporary measure to save milk for making much-needed butter, yet, housewives who get very little butter and milk, complain that the immature animals give "unsubstantial" meat.

Last fall, the government offered a premium of 40 marks (later 12 marks) for each porker brought to market, but the bonus failed to bring fulfillment of pork demands.

This spring, it increased the basic price of hogs weighing from 150 to 260 pounds.

In other words, it is paying farmers to dispose of their hogs before they are fattened in order to save feed for forthcoming pigs.

The result is the slaughter of animals, which a few more months of fattening, would furnish fats as well as pork. Hogs are counted on to furnish two-thirds of Germany's meat and one-fourth of her edible fat.

Answering the argument that the slaughter policy was endangering the future pork supply, one agricultural official declared that a higher price for hogs would jeopardize the nation's bread and potatoes because the farmers would be tempted to feed them grains and potatoes.

As being discussed at present the idea appears to be to make use of students during the vacation period.

To Broadcast Hurricanes

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Chief F. W. Reichelderfer of the Weather Bureau promised today every effort to give hurricane warnings to the Atlantic and Gulf coastal areas which may be threatened by such disturbances. The chief explained that arrangements were being made with military and naval authorities to collect warnings of hurricanes and also to give them widest publicity. Although radio stations ordinarily are not permitted to broadcast any weather information, should a hurricane threaten the weather bureau may get special permission to broadcast the warning by radio, as well as circulate it by newspapers and other services.

Sugar Truck Is Burned

Wallingford, Conn., May 19 (AP)—Soldier H. G. Wright on Fisher's Island in Long Island Sound may have a sugar shortage for a few days. A truck carrying 12½ tons of sugar consigned to the fort was destroyed by fire early today following a collision with an automobile here. Part of the sugar went up in the blaze; more was damaged.

Dahlgren Is Sold

Chicago, May 19 (AP)—First Baseman Babe Dahlgren was sold by the Chicago Cubs to Brooklyn today, General Manager Jim Gallagher of the Cubs announced. The Cubs sold Dahlgren to the St. Louis Browns last week but the Browns returned him to Chicago because of a disagreement over terms concerning the first baseman's possible entry into the nation's armed forces.

A.V.G. Pilot Is Killed

Chungking, May 19 (AP)—Tom Jones of Walla Walla, Wash., a pilot with the American Volunteer Group of "Flying Tigers" was injured fatally last Saturday afternoon when he crashed during a training flight over Kunming. It was reported today that Jones led the "Flying Tigers" against Japanese troops which tried to cross the Burma Road bridge over the Salween river on May 8, halting a further Japanese thrust into Yunnan province, and also took part in the bombing of an airfield near Hanoi on May 12.

Hoarded Gas Causes Fire

Stratford, Conn., May 19 (AP)—Hoarded gasoline, stowed away beneath the front porch, was blamed by Fire Chief Allen D. Judson today for a fire which caused about $5,000 damage to a three-family dwelling here.

The gasoline exploded last night, demolishing the porch and setting the front of the building ablaze, the chief said. A 50-gallon oil drum and two five-gallon cans were found under the charred porch, he said.

Burgevin Promoted

Fort Bragg, N. C., May 19 (AP)—John Burgevin, son of Mrs. Mabel Burgevin, 7 Johnston avenue, Kingston, has been promoted to the rank of first sergeant, it was announced today by his commanding officer, Lieutenant Colonel John Mesick of the 3rd Field Artillery Observation Battalion, a unit of the Fort Bragg Provisional Field Artillery Brigade. This marks the third advancement in two months for Sergeant Burgevin who prior to this appointment was a staff sergeant.

New York, May 19 (AP)—Slight but persistent irregularity continued to cloud trends in today's stock market.

The list at the start looked as though it might get going on the recovery route but a subsequent outbreak of weakness in American Telephone, recently a strong comeback performer, tended to chill bidders. Dealings picked up a bit over yesterday's crawling session and variations mostly were in fractions near the fourth hour.

Landing of a big U. S. Expeditionary Force in North Ireland was helpful to sentiment, as were additional Russian war reports, but buyers inclined to go slow pending developments on the domestic front.

Bonds were as mixed as stocks. Grain futures rallied.

Shares in the supported class included Eastern Air Lines, American Airlines, Goodrich, Union Carbide, Great Northern, Republic Steel, Eastman Kodak and American Smelting.

On the losing end at intervals were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber Preferred, United Aircraft, Phelps Dodge, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania and Dow Chemical.

Doing fairly well in the curb were Gulf Oil, American Cyanamid, Brewster Aero, Pantepec and Sherwin Williams. In the losing division were Lake Shore, American Gas, United Gas and Republic Aviation.

Doolittle Led Attack on Japan

honor on Doolittle's breast, Mr. Roosevelt remarked with a grin to reporters that not even a columnist had guessed it.

Besides General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the army, Lieutenant General H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air service, and Mr. Roosevelt, no one knew about the decoration until a few moments previous. And Mr. Roosevelt said he thought it would be quite a surprise to General Doolittle.

General Marshall read the citation for the medal, which said (about 75):

"Brigadier General James H. Doolittle, United States army, for conspicuous leadership above and beyond the call of duty, involving personal valor and intrepidity at an extraordinary hazard to life, with the apparent certainty of being forced to land in enemy territory or to perish at sea, General Doolittle personally led a squadron of army bombers, manned by volunteer crews in a highly destructive raid on the Japanese mainland."

Both the President and the war department were unanswered the question as to which the Japanese would like a solution: Where was the raiding squadron based?

Doolittle's Statement

Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle's statement on the recent bombing of Tokyo follows in full:

"The success of the recent air raid on Japan exceeded our most optimistic expectations. Each plane was assigned specific targets and the bombers carried out their duties with remarkable precision. Since the raid was made in fair weather in the middle of the day and from a very low altitude, no trouble whatever was experienced in finding the exact target designated. Apparently there was no advance warning of the raid, as we experienced little hostile reaction. Not more than 30 Japanese pursuit planes were observed during the flight and these were completely ineffective. Several we know were shot down, possibly more. Incidentally the pilots of these planes seemed somewhat inexperienced, evidently not up to the standard of those encountered in active theaters."

"We approached our objectives just over the house-tops but bombed at 1,500 feet. The target for one plane was a portion of the navy yard south of Tokyo, in reaching which they had passed over what apparently was a flying school, as there were a number of planes in the air. One salvo made a direct hit on a new cruiser or battleship under construction. They left it in flames."

"After releasing our bombs we dived again to the tree-tops and went to the coast at that altitude to avoid anti-aircraft fire."

"The flying line we observed several squadrons of destroyers and some cruisers and battleships. About 25 or 30 miles to sea the rear gunners reported seeing columns of smoke rising thousands of feet in the air."

"One of our bombardiers strewed incendiary bombs along a quarter of a mile of aircraft factory near Nagoya. Another illuminated a tank farm. However, flying at such low altitudes made it very difficult to observe the result following the impact of the bombs. We could see the strike, but our field of vision was greatly restricted by the speed of the plane and the low altitude at which we were flying. Even so, one of our party observed a ball game in progress. The players and spectators did not start their run for cover until just as the field passed out of sight."

"Pilots, bombardiers and all members of the crew performed their duties with great calmness and remarkable precision. It appeared to us that practically every bomb reached the target for which it was intended. Like a tank farm. However, flying at such low altitudes made it very difficult to observe the result following the impact of the bombs. ## Recruiting Policy Of U. S. Navy Air Force Explained

Lieut. Comdr. Albert F. Rice, U.S.N.R., senior member of the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board for the Third Naval District, explained today that the "broadened" recruiting policy of the U. S. Navy Air Force is aimed at enlisting 30,000 men a year for the Naval Air Force.

This new plan of recruiting under which high school graduates between 18 and 27 may qualify to become aviation officers with the rank of ensign in the U. S. Naval Reserve, or second lieutenant in the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, is now in its third week, with an average of about 100 applicants a day applying at the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board at 120 Broadway.

It marks the first time the navy has offered young men with only a high school diploma the opportunity to apply for flight training leading to commissioned officer status. The new plan as authorized by the secretary of the navy will not interfere in any way with the existing V-1 program under which college students may enlist now to become aviation, deck or engineering officers and continue their education, at least until the end of the second calendar year.

"Naval aviators are not supermen, although men like Lieut. Comdr. Edward H. Hare, U.S.N., may give that impression," Lieut. Comdr. Rice declared. "We are just looking for normal American boys who would rather fly than eat."

The men accepted under the new requirements will be sent immediately to one of the four college centers recently taken over by the naval air force for the three months physical fitness program. These collegiate centers are the University of North Carolina, the University of Georgia, University of Iowa, and St. Mary's College, California. This three-month program of hardening bodies for training and combat duty is under supervision of Lieut. Comdr. Thomas Hamilton, U.S.N., former head football coach at Annapolis.

Commander Rice said, "Altogether it takes us 11 months to turn out a navy aviator," he pointed out. "Our men are complete crews in themselves. They know flying, navigation, and bomb-throwing, so that every man can take over any job. When a navy flyer is launched from a carrier, he must be able to pilot his ship, drop bombs accurately, and then return and find his ship, which may have changed its position."

Men from this area will be sent for their initial three-months training to the University of North Carolina. Lieut. Comdr. James Crowley, U.S.N.R., former head football coach at Fordham will be head football coach there, and each of the three other reception centers will have equally famous coaches. Each one of the training colleges will have a football team, with a complete football schedule for next year.

Following this will come three months of primary flight training at a Naval Reserve Aviation Base. Successfully completing this second phase of their navy education, the candidates will be sent to the great Naval Air Stations at either Pensacola, Florida, or Corpus Christi, Texas, for approximately three months of advanced training.

Commissions as ensigns in the U. S. Naval Reserve and as second lieutenants in the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve await the candidates who successfully complete the course and win their "Navy Wings of Gold."

Throughout the entire training period candidates will be paid in accordance with their ratings. Aviation cadets are paid $75 a month, plus subsistence and uniforms. Upon completion of training and appointment as ensign in the naval reserve or second lieutenant in the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve they will receive $245 a month, including allowances.

Two mental tests are given the candidates to test their qualifications. The first, the coarse screen test, will consist simply of unsuccessful classification test with a general classification test with a mark of 80, or better. It will be conducted for civilian applicants at navy recruiting stations, as a means of determining whether applicants who are otherwise acceptable should be forwarded to a Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board for further processing. The coarse screen test will not be required in cases of individuals who present themselves directly to a Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board.

The second, the fine screen test will be conducted and scored only by the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Boards, and will be a final prerequisite for determining the mental qualifications for enlistment in Class V-5 of otherwise qualified applicants.

In outlying communities recruiters will continue to review all applications as heretofore, to insure that applications are in correct form and accompanied by required documentary data. When an applicant is considered qualified in all respects in accordance with prescribed requirements, including successful completion of the coarse screen test, he will be forwarded at government expense to the nearest Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board.

High school graduates desiring to enroll in Class V-5 may obtain additional information at any navy recruiting station.

He Got There—By a Tooth
Coke, Okla. (AP)—Clee Doggett's newspaper says a Cherokee bridegroom was delayed slightly in arriving at his wedding the other day. The church was filling with people; the minister was ready and so were bridesmaids, the best man and the flower girls. Then the last tug at his tie, to be sure it was straight. His fingers slipped and he knocked out a false tooth that fell down a drain pipe. It took the plumbers an hour to recover the tooth.

Notes Gains in Farm Population of New York

Ithaca, N. Y., — Credit the war, love of the open spaces, or a nearby city job, but the fact remains the New York farm population at least for the present, is on the increase.

For the first time since 1880, for any decade, rural farm folks have gained. The increase was 9,336 from 1930 to 1940, says Prof. W. A. Anderson, rural sociologist at Cornell University. At the same time the rural non-farm population increased by nearly 238,000.

He attributes the farm gains to city residents who moved to farms and to farm residents who, instead of moving to the city, have remained on farms and commute to city jobs. Development of new farms was marked in the four suburban counties of New York city and in counties with the ten next largest cities.

Professor Anderson's study shows continued growth in the suburbanization that was so strong between 1920 and 1930. Problems that the rural areas face as a result of increasing numbers are summarized by the Cornell rural sociologist:

Rural schools cannot be solely for rural training, but will find it necessary to adjust their programs to non-farm as well as farm life.

The purchase of farms as residences for persons whose main incomes are from city jobs may influence farm land values and create problems for the farmer who may not be able to compete with their over-capitalization.

Tax difficulties may arise both in the rural areas and in the cities from which the residents have moved.

New wealth brought into the communities will affect standards of living.

Professor Anderson says the distinction between rural and urban is rapidly disappearing.

"This movement of folks from city to country, however, will not doubt be halted during the war, but may be only temporary. After the war it is expected to continue."

Jacobs Also Will Talk To Official About Louis

New York, May 19 (AP)—Mike Jacobs goes to Washington today to supervise the final details of Thursday's Lee Savold-Lou Nova Navy Relief fight in the capital city but the promoter also will drop in on army officials for a chat about Pvt. Joe Louis.

Jacobs is planning a summer ring attraction between Louis and Bob Pastor but the latest word from the capital is that army officials are not too keen on giving the heavyweight champion an extended furlough although a portion of the fight receipts would go to war relief.

No Rubber Bands

Junior isn't going to get any new rubber bands for his slingshot, and Sis is going to have to tie up those million pounds of crude rubber into 30 billion rubber bands every year. That's out, for the duration.

Six million pounds of rubber cut into strips of gas tanks into 300 heavy bombers and make the threads and engine-mounts and shock-absorbing cushions and machine gun insulation for 500 tanks. Or it could be used to make 1,500,000 gas masks and 500,000 Army raincoats.

Kentuckian Publishes Paper on Checkers, Offers Proof Game Isn't Only for 'Hicks'

By J. R. ANDERSON
Wide World Features

Mt. Sterling, Ky.—Checkers; a game played by "hicks"? "Not on your life," snorted husky Emin Elam, owner-publisher-editor of "Elam's Checker Board," which he says is the only weekly newspaper devoted exclusively to the game of checkers.

Pausing at his work as a linotype operator for the Mt. Sterling Sentinel-Democrat, the 50-year-old Elam declared:

"Why, I have more readers on Broadway (New York) than I have in any point in Kentucky. And there is a column in my paper devoted to Checkers on Broadway."

"Checkers a game for hicks? That's a lot of bosh. Many of my subscribers are ministers, bankers and professors."

"My papers are sent all over the world and is read wherever the English language is spoken and the game of checkers is played. And checkers is no game for loafers, either. It is purely mental and a loafer does not have time to think. The game is a national pastime and the true player does not get 'nuts' on the subject."

On the Spot Where Golfing Luck Really Ends The Yardstick Of Greatness

By DILLON GRAHAM
Wide World Sports Editor

New York—Walter Hagen used to say that any lucky bum might win the National Open once but the test of greatness was whether a golfer could win it twice or more.

And that applies to the other major championships, too. The Professional Golfers' tourney, British Open, the Western and Augusta Masters' and Canadian Opens, they're the big ones. These tournament-tour triumphs don't amount to much. The pros don't figure they've accomplished much until they grab one of the big six.

The test of real competitive spirit and skill lies in how many of these major meets a golfer can win during his career. No player has ever won all of them, but three American aces—Hagen, Gene Sarazen and Tommy Armour—have captured five of the six. And Sarazen, the stocky little Roman, is a notch ahead of the others because he twice was runner-up for the Canadian Open, the only one that has escaped him.

Hagen, however, has won 17 tournaments in this Big Six competition, as against eight for Sarazen and seven for Armour. Hagen and Armour might have made it a grand slam too if the Augusta Masters' had been started earlier. Sir Walter and the Silver Scot were past their competitive peak when the Masters' was inaugurated in 1934.

On all sides we hear today's crop of professionals are the greatest in golfing history but of the pros who have come along since 1930 only two—Byron Nelson and Ralph Guldahl—have made an overall showing comparable with those standouts of the '20's.

Hogan Is Consistent

They say Sammy Snead is perhaps the top shotmaker of all time. Ben Hogan's record stamps him as the most consistent low scorer in history. No putter is tabbed as better than Horton Smith—and putting wins tournaments. But none of these have chalked up many big tournament wins.

It must be admitted there are more fine golfers competing now than 15 or 20 years ago. The competition is stiffer in numbers, but today's players don't play under a situation that has "Jones against the field."

And when Sarazen, won a title from such fellows as Jones, Hagen, Armour and Jim Barnes, he did a job which, this corner thinks, was better than Lawson Little's National Open victory ago.

Snead Is Hard-Lucker

Others who were close are Leo Diegel, who won four Canadian Opens and two P.G.A.'s; Olin Dutra, who took the U. S. Open

Golf's Scorecard:

*Not eligible for P.G.A. (a) Evans won U. S. amateur twice, Little won U. S. amateur and British amateur twice, Jones won U. S. amateur five times and British amateur once. (b) Olin Dutra won U. S. Open and P.G.A.

against an all-star field two years ago. The P.G.A.: Paul Runyan, who won the P.G.A. twice; Henry Picard, P.G.A. and Masters' victor, and Johnny Revolta, who won the P.G.A. and the Western.

Snead is the hard-luck guy. He's won the Canadian three times. He has been beaten in the P.G.A. finals twice and luck has turned against him twice in the U. S. Open, in 1939 when that last-hole eight robbed him of a win and in 1937 when he shattered the championship's scoring record only to have Guldahl produce an even better score.

Those pros without a major crown will have another chance May 25-30 at Atlantic City in the P.G.A. But the odds are it will go to one of the previous winners with Nelson as the likely victor.

City League Baseball Games at Hasbrouck and Block Parks Tonight

Ponchohockie to Play Swamp Lilies and Habers Will Meet Glascos All-Stars

The game between the Ponchohockie Terriers and the Swamp Lilies at Hasbrouck Park tonight at 6:30 looms to be a "natural." Both teams come from North Rondout and a battle royal is expected as both teams have been arch rivals for years. The Ponchohockie Terriers have a strong lineup with the following players making up the roster: John Perry, Joe Perry, Louis Perry, Dominic Perry, Jack Buchanan, Joe Krepel, Donald Williams, Ed Schussler, Herb Williams, Ken Heppner, Jimmy Turk, Johnny Berardi, Tom Heneberry, Tommy Amato, Art Hansen and John Costello.

The Glascos All Stars, managed by Charlie Manfro, has a team of vast experience and should give Habers a real battle. Charles Francello, Frank Francello, Albert Greco, Charlie Hertica, Earl Mitchell, Charlie Manfro, "Toddy" Uhl, Ken Swart, "Gabby" Benjamin, Frank Ferraro, Joe Ferraro, Peter Fondino, Thomas Carlino, Joseph Fondino, Mike Francello and Rolie Mauro make up the Glascos roster. Toddy Uhl has been selected to toss them over for the All Stars. Uhl is widely known in this area for his brilliant pitching with the City League Grunewald Bakers and the Kingston Colonials.

The umpires selected for these games will be Johnny Prucal, veteran softball umpire, behind the plate at Hasbrouck Park with Jim Freleigh on the bases and Mac Tiano, veteran local player, behind the plate and Vic Rickertson on the bases at Block Park.

U.B.K. Beat Hercules

Monday night at the Myron Michael diamond, the U. B. K. defeated Hercules, 11 to 7. Weiner and Kaplan formed the battery for the winners and Tomshaw and Noble for the losers. Kaplan hit two doubles for the U. B. K. and Weiner made three hits.

Connie Mack Sees Indians As Definite Contenders; Dodgers Boost Their Lead

Banning of Night Baseball in New York Wipes Out 28 Games

New York, May 19 (AP)—Night baseball has been banned in New York city for the duration and now everybody is wondering what will become of the first all-star game scheduled for the Polo Grounds the night of Monday, July 6.

It would be difficult to assemble the cast for a daytime game because many of the stars will come from St. Louis and Chicago. Doubleheaders are scheduled in both cities July 4 and 5, and it is doubtful whether players could take part in the latter program and make train connections to arrive in New York in time to play Monday afternoon.

President Ford Frick acknowledged the problems facing the game and said he expected Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis to call an early meeting of the advisory council, which includes Frick and President Will Harridge of the American League, to consider the matter.

The winner between the National and American League All-Stars is slated to oppose a team of Army and Navy stars at Cleveland Tuesday night, July 7. Wednesday has been made an open date in both major leagues to allow for postponements and one solution to the New York difficulty may be to push both all-star struggles back a day to Tuesday and Wednesday.

The night baseball ban, pronounced by Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine yesterday, wiped out 28 games scheduled for the parks of the New York giants and Brooklyn Dodgers. The first of these contests would have involved the Dodgers and Giants at the Polo Grounds Friday night. It will be played instead at the usual afternoon starting time of 3 p. m.

The Giants will not try twilight ball but the Dodgers may.

Sports Shorts

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 19 (AP)—Mickey Owen's luck last year wasn't all of the best, especially in the World Series where the Brooklyn catcher dropped a third strike that enabled the New York Yankees to win the game.

This year, however, it has been different. He has been in the lineup 17 times and the Dodgers have won every game in which he caught.

Halifax, N. S., May 19 (AP)—The fair sex is invading another strictly masculine field. A war shortage of men and boys on this Canadian city's golf course has given girls a chance to be bag toters and club pro Kas Zabowski says they are very "conscious."

Boston, May 19 (AP)—Jay G. McRae, Jr., of Baltimore, Boston University's negro bow-oar, today was elected captain of next year's varsity crew. He probably is the only member of his race to be so honored in the history of American college rowing.

McRae, who never rowed until he entered Boston University three years ago, became interested in rowing at the suggestion of a physical training instructor who was amazed at the unusually high results he achieved in the gymnasium.

Owensboro, Ky., May 19 (AP)—Sporting News, the national baseball newspaper, is almost a bible for ball players, but not for a rookie with Owensboro of the Kitty League.

Looking over the shoulder of a fellow player at a two-page spread in the paper, he exclaimed: "Boy! They sure play up baseball in your home town paper, don't they?"

Montgomery, Ala., May 19 (AP)—When Paul Armstrong, Montgomery's Southeastern League center-fielder, left the dugout to bat in the ninth at Anniston, Ala., Sunday, he asked Manager Bill Cronin:

"Whatta you want me to do, bunt, hit it out of the park or what?"

"Hit it out of the park," Cronin told him.

"Okeh," Armstrong replied, stepped to the plate and planted the ball the other side of the fence to tie the score.

Kansas City, May 19 (AP)—Kansas City baseball players who have played with their Yankee farm club cousins, the Newark Bears in the International League, believe American Association pitching is inferior to that of the eastern circuit.

"It was much tougher for hitters in the International," declares Catcher Ken Sears, and the others echo his conviction. "Why, Gene Corbett, the International's leading hitter, batted only .306, which gives you an idea."

Kingston High Plays Poughkeepsie Wednesday

Wednesday afternoon Memorial Field, Poughkeepsie, will be the scene of an important game, when the Kingston High School nine meets the Bridge City school combination.

Poughkeepsie is unbeaten in eight contests this season and is pointing for Wednesday's game. In its latest games Kingston has shown real strength and should be a match for their opponents.

Wins for Recs

BOB BUSH

Bob Bush hurled a four-hit game Sunday at the municipal stadium against the Mohawk Giants, the Recreations winning the contest, 3 to 2. Monday, Bob left with the contingent of selectees for the induction center.

New Strawberries Are Recommended

Varieties Originated at Experiment Station

Geneva, N. Y. — Four varieties of strawberries originated on the grounds of the State Experiment Station here and notable for their large size, attractive appearance, and good quality are being recommended by the Station fruit specialists for trial both for home use and for market. The new sorts, which ripen in mid-season, are sister seedlings from a cross between Howard and Marshall and are described as exceptionally vigorous and as excellent plant-makers. They have been named Cato, Catskill, Clermont, and Culver.

Each of the varieties has some special adaptation, being better for one purpose than another. Culver, for example, has proved especially popular with the canning industry for the making of strawberry preserves, due largely to its dark red color and sprightly flavor. Culver is also highly rated as a berry for home use. Cato, on the other hand, bruises too easily to make a very satisfactory market berry but is highly valued on account of its quality.

Clermont is excellent both for home use and for market and is said to be one of the outstanding strawberries grown on the Station grounds. The fruits are large and hold up well throughout the season and have good handling qualities. Catskill's true value was first noted in tests made away from Geneva. It is proving exceptionally popular in the north-eastern states where it is a heavy yielder and a good market berry. Cato is primarily a berry for home use.

The Station also recently introduced Dresden, a cross between Beacon and Howard. It is noteworthy for its productiveness, large size, and attractive appearance. Dresden is recommended for trial as a market berry. Planting stocks of all of the Station's new strawberries are obtainable from the New York State Fruit Testing Association at Geneva which cooperates with the Experiment Station in the propagation and distribution of its new fruits. Some of the new varieties are also offered by commercial nurseries.

Careful Planning For Charm, Unity In Small Rooms

By Esther Hansen McTigue

No one would ever suspect that two living rooms only about 14 feet long and 12 feet wide—the typical living room size in many new apartment houses and small homes—could be as charming as two I saw recently. Yet these two seem really spacious and have all the essentials for comfort.

This is because Mrs. W., who decided she wanted an 18th Century English living room, and Mrs. C., who decided on modern, knew that to make the most of the space every piece of furniture had to have a reason for being there, and that some of the pieces had to serve two purposes.

Sofa Becomes Bed

Mrs. W. knew that she had to have an extra sleeping place in their one-bedroom apartment, so that when Mr. W.'s mother and dad came to visit them, they would not have to be parked in a hotel. Both Mr. and Mrs. W. felt this simply would not work out happily for the old folks. So they bought a beautifully proportioned Lawson sofa, and no one would suspect that it pulls out to make a bed, and a comfortable one, for their overnight guests.

To store her table and bed linen, Mrs. W. bought a very nicely proportioned Hepplewhite chest, and by putting a mirror over it, and a pair of good lamps on it, made it a nice decorative group in her room. Incidentally, it also helped to solve the problem of lighting.

She bought the chest with a secret plan in mind—that eventually, when all she would have to do, it would go into a guest room or a hall.

Duncan Phyfe Table

Of course they had to have some place to eat, and so Mrs. W. bought a Duncan Phyfe drop leaf table with a beautifully carved base, and four ribbon back chairs. She put the table on the opposite wall, facing the sofa, with a pair of the chairs on either side. The third chair she placed near the chest, as part of that group, the fourth went into the bedroom. Eventually she visualized the table and chairs in a little dining room, when all she would have to buy would be a pair of upholstered "host" chairs, a china cabinet and a serving table to make it charming.

Mr. and Mrs. C. had driven hundreds of miles to Mr. C.'s new job in a defense plant, and they felt themselves very fortunate to be able to move into one of the new little houses the government had built near the plant.

They had left all their old furniture behind them. They felt it wasn't worth moving, and they wanted to start out all over. They both decided they wanted modern furniture, and they were thinking ahead, too, to the day when they would go back home and buy a little place of their own. But instead of living as transients in the new home, they decided they would start "living" right now. Mr. C.'s new job was the first good luck he had had in several years.

They both liked the idea of "sectional" pieces in modern . . . pieces that can be juggled around to fit any kind of wall space, and make all sorts of combinations. They felt they would be safe investments, and would fit into the little dream home to come without any of those heartaches caused by making mistakes. So they bought a sofa in three sections, the two end pieces with arms, the center one without.

All three when placed together make a nice long couch for Mr. C.'s before-dinner catnaps. And Mrs. C. could see in her mind's eye the attractive combinations she could make by using the two ends together as a love seat, and the center one as an extra chair, or how the three pieces, separated, and placed around a round cocktail table, would make a charming conversational group for that little dream house.

Four Wall Units

They bought a number of wall units, two, which they arranged along one wall—one for storing linens and the best dishes, another for books, a third for the radio and record-player, with a place for the record albums, and the fourth a table, which, with a top unit, made a desk. Mrs. C. keeps her household accounts and her correspondence in the top unit; she is an avid letter-writer to the folks back home.

She knows that when they buy that little dream house, the top unit will go over the chest and make a china cabinet, and the table she is using now as a desk will make a server for the dining room.

No Springs

Anticipating a shortage of steel for wire springs, furniture manufacturers already are producing "springless" chairs and davenports which nevertheless retain a maximum of comfort. Above, W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of the Public Housing Administration, registers his approval of one of the new models.

On Furlough

PVT. ARTHUR BURGER

Private Arthur Burger of 212 Broadway, son of the late Mrs. Ella Giles, who was inducted into the army on April 13, is now stationed at Moore Field, Mission, Texas. Private Burger is spending a 30 day furlough at his home here, having been called here by the recent death of his mother.

LEIBHARDT

Leibhardt, May 19—Mr. and Mrs. Gus Lindgren entertained over the past week-end her uncle and aunt and family from New York.

Mrs. H. C. Locke has returned to her home, Camp Shady Rest, after visiting with relatives in the city.

Mrs. Floyd Brown of Samsomville is on a five-day vacation attending the meeting in Elmira of the Rebekah Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Christians of Mombaccus visited Sunday her aunt, Mrs. Lillian Brown and family of Samsomville. E. B. Markle and mother-in-law, Mrs. M. Gorsline of this area also were callers.

Ben Schrieberman of New York spent Sunday and Monday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Schrieberman.

Mr. and Mrs. David Austin and family of Rochester Center spent the week-end in Hartford, Conn., with his sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Quick and Mr. and Mrs. Gus Lindgren made a trip to Kingston Thursday.

Mrs. E. B. Markle called Friday evening on Mrs. William Brown. Mrs. A. Markle of Mombaccus is up and about the house after being ill.

They put their dining table, one of the extension kind, and a pair of chairs, just like Mrs. W. did. Over the table she hung four framed flower prints as a group, so that when they dine they feel they are looking into a flower garden.

Both Mrs. W. and Mrs. C. are terribly proud of their living rooms and love to show them off to their friends. People like to visit them, too. And the husbands . . . well, they're as pleased as punch with the way their wives handled the problem of furnishing a small living room, and yet buying things with "an eye to the future."

Wurts Street Baptists Have Corporate Meeting

The members of the Wurts Street Baptist Church met at a supper meeting in the chapel, Thursday evening, May 14, after which the annual business and corporate meeting was held.

Following a brief devotional program the church business was discussed and officers elected as follows: Clifford Hicks and Lawrence Jensen, trustees for three years to succeed themselves; Dewey Bundy and Nicholas Bode, deacons for two years; Mrs. Katherine Madden, Mrs. Leslie Flowers, Mrs. Nicholas Bode, deaconesses for two years.

The report for all organizations showed a year of progress and substantial balance in the treasury. A new organization was established during the year called the Herald of the King Christian Endeavor Society with Miss Ethel Lowe as leader assisted by Mrs. John A. Wright. The results of the Penny-a-Meal banks over a period of five months was most gratifying. Although a number of old members have been lost through death four new members were baptized this year.

The committee who arranged for the supper was Mrs. John Wright, Mrs. John Bigler, Katherine Madden, Mrs. E. Flowers, Mrs. D. S. Moore assisted by Miss Helen Hogan and Isabel Madden.
